Must Know Ai Email Assistant For Seniors:

The International Responsibility of States for AI-enabled Space Activities Stefan-Michael Wedenig, 2025-12-22
Artificial Intelligence AI has permeated our every day lives What once was solely a human task has now been taken over by AI May it be credit card approvals customer support financial transactions medical imaging or software development there is AI working behind the scenes Outer space historically always amongst the most developed domains has not remained untouched for long and space applications have started to increasingly rely on AI However this increase in use also leads to a myriad of legal issues particularly the issue of responsibility and liability under Article VI and Article VII of the Outer Space Treaty and the Liability Convention Our legal norms may they be domestic or international in nature are ultimately built around human behaviour and when applied to AI might not function Should damage caused by an AI enabled space object arise it proves difficult to assess the responsibility of the appropriate State party under Article VI of the Outer Space Treaty or the liability of the launching State While legal literature is primarily concerned with domestic legal issues arising from the use of AI an in depth analysis concerning State responsibility and liability for AI enabled space activities is absent Space legal literature strongly favours a view advocating for the creation of new hard law in form of new binding legal instruments or the amendment of existing law Suggestions de lege ferenda are often relied on by authors Given the inherent difficulty in creating new law or amend existing legal instruments this book proposes to look towards the lex lata and argues that the existing legal norms of State responsibility State liability and treaty law are sufficient to govern the responsibility of States for their AI enabled space activities The present research looks at these issues from a public international law perspective and proposes a solution within the lex lata

Integrating Artificial and Human Intelligence through Agent Oriented Systems Design Michael E. Miller, Christina F. Rusnock, 2024-08-28 This book departs from the assumption that Artificial Intelligence AI systems will provide a maximum advantage by replacing human cognitive processing Instead this book subscribes to the assumption that AI systems will provide a maximal advantage when the system is specifically designed to augment human intelligence It provides methods for designing effective systems that include one or more humans and one or more AI entities and uses the approach that assumes automation does not replace human activity but fundamentally changes the structure of human work when AI is added to existing systems Integrating Artificial and Human Intelligence through Agent Oriented Systems Design discusses the potential impact of AI on human work and life and explores why teamwork is necessary today for complex work environments The book explains the processes and methods humans employ to effectively team with one another and presents the elements of artificial agents that permit them to function as team members in joint human and artificial teams It discusses design goals and illustrates how the methods that have been used to model the complex interactions among human and artificial agents can be expanded to enable the design of interaction between them to make possible the attainment of the shared goals Model Based Systems Engineering MBSE tools that provide logical designs of human agent teams the AI within these teams training to be deployed for human and artificial agent team members and the interfaces between human and artificial agent team members are all covered MBSE files containing profiles and examples for building MBSE models used in the design approach are featured on the author s website <https://lovesterresci.com> hat This book is an ideal read for students professors engineers and project managers associated with designing and developing AI systems or systems that seek to incorporate AI
