Unfinished Business Paula Egelson, C. Steven Bingham, Barbara B. Howard, 2024-09-01 Unfinished Business A Regional Education Laboratory Retrospective on School Improvement is authored by education professionals formerly employed at SERVE one of the ten US federally funded education research and development laboratories SERVE S region included the following southeastern states Alabama Florida Georgia Mississippi North Carolina and South Carolina The school improvement recollections found in this book are supported by contemporaneous data collected for research and evaluation as well as literature interviews and evidence from former clients and collaborators Each of the chapter authors wrote about a school improvement initiative in which they led or participated in developing Compared to the other nine labs SERVE was heavily field based SERVE s projects and publications focused on school improvement research policy and professional development The work was typically launched in a spirit best described as emergent design Building on extant research and best practice potential clients across the six state region were approached with ideas for educational interventions and evidence to support theories of action It is underscored that improving America s public schools teachers and school administrators is a continuous process involving difficult work It is hoped that this book will offer suggestions to educators about how to implement school improvement including what works and what doesn t and how initiatives can evolve positively over time

ENDORSEMENTS This retrospective on the work done by the SERVE lab serves to underscore the important role education laboratories can play in helping schools improve the systems and processes supporting more equitable learning opportunities and higher student achievement As the authors indicate the work of school improvement is never finished hence it follows that continually trying out well grounded interventions and examining their impacts on leadership teaching and learning is essential to moving improvement science forward Betty Fry Southern Regional Education Board School improvement work needs to be an all hands on deck effort that engages teachers administrators students parents and guardians and stakeholders in meaningful co ownership of helping schools be successful for all students

Unfinished Business seeks to examine the work of educational leaders and organizations who have been immersed in extended efforts to both understand and meet the various challenges of educating students. By including voices with rich experiences and perspectives and highlighting steps taken to realize successes, this book provides insights and lessons learned to reflect upon in considering next steps. Bill Sterrett, Baylor University. What an outstanding book based on thoughtful reflections of practitioners working on improving schools. If readers want to get an understanding of federally supported research and development laboratories, this is an excellent book on lessons learned. Unfinished Business offers important technical concepts in practice such as stakeholder involvement, emergent designs, interventions, implementation, sustainability, and organizational culture, to cite a few, but also insightful lessons on results-oriented distributed leadership. A must read for leaders across the board: local, state, and federal educational agencies. Marco Muoz, Jefferson County Schools, KY.

Integrating Technology in Literacy Instruction Peggy S. Lisenbee, Jodi Pilgrim, Sheri Vasinda, 2020-05-17. This text addresses the changing literacies surrounding students and the need to communicate effectively using technology tools. Technology has the power to transform teaching and learning in classrooms and to promote active learning, interaction, and engagement through different tools and applications. While both technologies and research in literacy are rapidly changing and evolving, this book presents lasting frameworks for teacher candidates to effectively evaluate and implement digital tools to enhance literacy classrooms. Through the lens of Universal Design for Learning (UDL), this text prepares teacher candidates to shape learning environments that support the needs and desires of all literacy learners through the integration of technology and literacy instruction by providing a range of current models and frameworks. This approach supports a comprehensive understanding of the complex multiliteracies landscape. These models address technology integration and demonstrate how pedagogical knowledge, content knowledge, and technological knowledge can be integrated for the benefit of all learners in a range of contexts. Each chapter includes prompts for reflection and discussion to encourage readers to consider how literacy and technology can enable teachers to become agents of change, and the book also features Appendices with annotated resource lists of technology tools for students with varied literacy needs in our digital age.
