Ced And Education National Impact And Next Steps Ced Symposium:

CED and Education Committee for Economic Development, 1988 Common Purpose Lisbeth Schorr, 1998-07-13 In her previous book Within Our Reach renowned Harvard social analyst Lisbeth Schorr examined pilot social programs that were successful in helping disadvantaged youth and families But as those cutting edge programs were expanded the very qualities that had made them initially successful were jettisoned and less than half of them ultimately survived As a result these groundbreaking programs never made a dent on the national or statewide level Lisbeth Schorr has spent the past seven years researching and identifying large scale programs across the country that are promising to reduce on a community or citywide level child abuse school failure teenage pregnancy and welfare dependence From reformed social service agencies in Missouri Michigan and Los Angeles to idiosyncratic public schools in New York City she shows how private and public bureaucracies are successfully nurturing programs that are flexible and responsive to the community that have set clear long term goals and that permit staff to exercise individual judgment in helping the disadvantaged She shows how what works in small scale pilot social programs can be adapted on a large scale to transform whole inner city neighborhoods and reshape America On the heels of the federal government's dismantling of welfare guarantees Common Purpose offers a welcome antidote to our current sense of national despair and concrete proof that America's social institutions can be made to work to assure that all the nation's children develop the tools to share in the American dream

Training Strategies United States. General Accounting Office, 1990 Contains information on the weaknesses in the U S education and training system for preparing noncollege youth for employment and foreign strategies that appear relevant to the U S shortcomings Also includes policy actions that might be considered by the Federal state and local governments

Business Impact on Education and Child Development Reform P. Michael Timpane, Laurie Miller McNeill, 1991 This research report provides a critical look at the involvement of corporate America in the resurgence of public education and its impact on the reform movement particularly on early childhood issues The history of the business education relationship in this century is the topic of Chapter 1 Chapter 2 describes patterns of involvement from helping hand relationships to programmatic initiatives to compacts and collaborative efforts and finally to policy change with the helping hand model being the most popular and widespread Chapter 3 assesses results at the end of the recent decade of renewed corporate interest in education and child development and finds that although there is much and varied activity business participation has not yet been fully adequate to the task because there has been no widespread impact on educational outcomes Chapter 4 addresses the needs of the coming decade and describes the six following goals 1 stay the course 2 promote national dialogue and federal involvement 3 pursue related human service perspectives 4 build the infrastructure of business education partnerships 5 support pertinent research and analysis and 6 review and assess the commitment and performance of businesses A 255 item bibliography is included JB The Role of the Faculty in Meeting the National Need for African
