Content Strategy at Work Margot Bloomstein, 2012-01-25

Content is king and the new kingmaker and your message needs to align with your model and metrics and other mumbo jumbo right? Whether you are slogging through theory or buzzwords, there is no denying content strategy is coming of age. But what is in it for you? And if you are not a content strategist, why should you care? Because even if content strategy isn't your job, content is probably your problem and probably more than you think. You or your business has a message you want to deliver right? You can deliver that message through various channels and content types from Tweets to testimonials and photo galleries galore and your audience has just as many ways of engaging with it. So many ways so much content so where is the problem? That is the problem. And you can measure it in time, creativity, money lost, opportunity and the sobs you hear equally from creative directors, project managers and search engine marketing specialists. The solution is content strategy and this book offers real world examples and approaches you can adopt no matter your role on the team. Put content strategy to work for you by gathering this book into your little hands and gobbling up never before seen case studies from teams at Johns Hopkins Medicine, MINI, Icebreaker and more. Content Strategy at Work is a book for designers, information architects, copywriters, project managers and anyone who works with visual or verbal content. It discusses how you can communicate and forge a plan that will enable you, your company or your client get that message across and foster better user experiences. Presents a content strategy framework and ways to implement in both in-house marketing departments and consultancies. Includes case studies, interviews and lessons learned from retail, apparel, network television, business to business, automotive, non-profit and higher ed brands. Details practical sales techniques to sell content strategy and use content strategy processes to sell other services and larger projects.
