Jeffres,David J. Atkin,Kimberly A.

Neuendorf,2022-12-05 This volume bridges the divide between film and media studies scholarship by exploring audience expectations of film and TV genre in the age of digital streaming using qualitative thematic and quantitative data driven analyses Through four ground breaking surveys of audience members and content creators the authors have empirically determined what audiences expect of various genres the extent to which these definitions match those of scholars and critics and the overall variation and complexity of audience expectations in the age of media abundance They also examine audience habits and preferences drawing from both theory and original empirical analyses with a view toward the implications for the moving image in a rapidly changing media environment The book draws from the data to develop a number of new concepts including genre repertoire genre hybridity audience interest maximization and variety seeking and a new stage of genre development genre bending It is an ideal resource for students and scholars interested in the symbiotic relationship between audiences and the moving image products they consume as well as the way the current digital media environment has impacted our understanding of film and TV genres Media Authorship Cynthia Chris,David A. Gerstner,2013

Contemporary media authorship is frequently collaborative participatory non site specific or quite simply goes unrecognized In this volume media and film scholars explore the theoretical debates around authorship intention and identity within the rapidly transforming and globalized culture industry of new media Defining media broadly across a range of creative artifacts and production cultures from visual arts to videogames from textiles to television contributors consider authoring practices of artists designers do it yourselfers media professionals scholars and others Specifically they ask What constitutes media and authorship in a technologically converged globally conglomerated multiplatform environment for the production and distribution of content What can we learn from cinematic and literary models of authorship and critiques of those models with regard to authorship not only in television and recorded music but also interactive media such as videogames and the Internet How do we conceive of authorship through practices in which users generate content collaboratively or via appropriation What institutional prerogatives and legal debates around intellectual property rights fair use and copyright bear on concepts of authorship in new media By addressing these issues Media Authorship demonstrates that the concept of authorship as formulated in literary and film studies is reinvigorated contested remade even reauthored by new practices in the digital media environment
