In today's digital economy, attention is short but perceived value is everything. This book shows you how to position even the tiniest offer or service as premium from day one. Inside you'll learn how to craft brand identities that feel bigger than they are through design, language, packaging and psychology. Whether you're launching a digital product, personal brand, workshop or one-off offer, you'll learn how to give it a unique personality that commands attention and respect. This isn't about faking luxury or pretending to be something you're not. It's about amplifying clarity, consistency and character so your brand communicates authority even with minimal content or assets. You'll also discover the power of brand stacking: how to create multiple micro brands under your umbrella that allow you to pivot, expand or cross-sell effortlessly. If you're tired of blending in, tired of building slow or tired of being overlooked because your business seems small, this is your blueprint. Because in today's world, the size of your audience doesn't determine your value; your positioning does. Make it sharp. Make it premium. Make it impossible to ignore, even if it's built in a weekend.

Audience Genre Expectations in the Age of Digital Media Leo W. Jeffres, David J. Atkin, Kimberly A. Neuendorf, 2022-12-05 This volume bridges the divide between film and media studies scholarship by exploring audience expectations of film and TV genre in the age of digital streaming using qualitative, thematic and quantitative data-driven analyses. Through four ground-breaking surveys of audience members and content creators, the authors have empirically determined what audiences expect of various genres, the extent to which these definitions match those of scholars and critics, and the overall variation and complexity of audience expectations in the age of media abundance. They also examine audience habits and preferences drawing from both theory and original empirical analyses with a view toward the implications for the moving image in a rapidly changing media environment. The book draws from the data to develop a number of new concepts including genre repertoire, genre hybridity, audience interest maximization and variety seeking, and a new stage of genre development: genre bending. It is an ideal resource for students and scholars interested in the symbiotic relationship between audiences and the moving image products they consume, as well as the way the current digital media environment has impacted our understanding of film and TV genres.

Media Authorship Cynthia Chris, David A. Gerstner, 2013 Contemporary media authorship is frequently collaborative, participatory, non-site specific or quite simply goes unrecognized. In this volume, media and film scholars explore the theoretical debates around authorship, intention and identity within the rapidly transforming and globalized culture industry of new media. Defining media broadly across a range of creative artifacts and production cultures, from visual arts to videogames, from textiles to television, contributors consider authoring practices of artists, designers, do-it-yourselfers, media professionals, scholars and others. Specifically, they ask: What constitutes media and authorship in a technologically converged globally conglomerated multiplatform environment for the production and distribution of content What can we learn from cinematic and literary models of authorship and critiques of those models with regard to authorship not only in television and recorded music but also interactive media such as videogames and the Internet How do we conceive of authorship through practices in which users generate content collaboratively or via appropriation What institutional prerogatives and legal debates around intellectual property rights fair use and copyright bear on concepts of authorship in new media By addressing these issues Media Authorship demonstrates that the concept of authorship as formulated in literary and film studies is reinvigorated contested remade even reauthored by new practices in the digital media environment
