Chesapeake Family And Their Slaves A Study In Historical Archaeology:

A Chesapeake Family and Their Slaves Anne E. Yentsch, 1994-05-12 This book is a unique archaeological study of a British aristocratic family in eighteenth century Chesapeake Domestic Culture in Early Modern England Antony Buxton, 2015 A detailed study of the domestic life of the early modern non elite household This book is a detailed study of the domestic life of the early modern non elite household focussing on the Oxfordshire market town of Thame Going beyond the exploration of the domestic economy and trends in living standards and consumption it shows how close examination of the material context within which the household operated can provide evidence of its habitual activities the relationships between its members and the values that informed both The book uses a familiar source the probate inventory supplemented by other contemporary written and pictorial evidence to reveal how activities in the household were directly related to the agricultural mercantile and social environment It illustrates the variable and shifting nature of social relationships and shows how the early modern household was part of the wider economic and social narrative of modernism and how it responded to altered modes of production and consumption social allegiances and ideologies Offering new perspectives to reinvigorate the discussion of domestic relationships and rigorously examine the vexed question of change Domestic Culture in Early Modern England will be of interest to scholars and postgraduate students of material culture as well as historians of the household and family more generally ANTONY BUXTON lectures on design history material and domestic culture for the Department for Continuing Education University of Oxford and other institutions He has published articles in various scholarly journals and holds a PhD from the University of Oxford Children in the Ancient Near Eastern Household Kristine Garroway, 2014-10-21 Children were an important part of the ancient Near Eastern household This idea seems straightforward but it can be understood in many ways On a basic level children are necessary for the perpetuation of a household On a deeper level the definitions of child and member of the household are far from categorical This book begins to explore the multiple definitions of child and the way the child fits within a household It examines what membership in the household looks like for children and what factors contribute to it A study addressing what a child is and how a child's gender and social status affect her place in the household is vital to a proper understanding of the ancient Near Eastern household Despite their importance children have long been marginalized in discussions of ancient societies Only recently has this trend begun to change within biblical and ancient Near Eastern scholarship A recent wave of studies especially in relation to the Hebrew Bible has started to address children in their own right In light of the current state of scholarship on children the purpose of this book is threefold First Garroway continues to fill out the picture of the child in the ancient Near East by compiling child centric texts and archaeological realia In analyzing these materials she surveys the relationship between children and ancient Near Eastern society by examining the extent to which structuring forces in a community such as social status and gender contribute to the process of a child's becoming a member of his household and society Finally this information provides a base for future research for example a cross cultural study of children in the ancient Near East in Classical Antiquity Writing the Lives of People and Things, AD 500-1700 Robert F.W. Smith, Gemma L.

Watson, 2017-05-15 Historical biography has a mixed reputation at its best it can reveal much not only about an individual but the wider context of their life and society at worst it can result in a narrowly focused work of hagiography or condemnation Yet in spite of its sometimes inferior status amongst academics biography has remained a popular genre and in recent years has developed into new and intriguing areas As the essays in this volume reveal scholars from an array of different disciplines have embraced what biography can offer them expanding the remit of biography from people to things tracing the life of their chosen object from creation to use to disposal to rediscovery The increasing concern with the physicality of manuscripts and books has also meant an awareness of and interest in the lives of these forms of material culture Historians have also become increasingly interested in groups of individuals resulting in prosopographical studies A book on the diversity of biography is therefore very timely exploring the multi disciplinary application of historical biography in the period 500 1700 It presents fourteen case studies offering new approaches to historical biography written by early career researchers from backgrounds in archaeology English art architectural history and history demonstrating different approaches and techniques Overall the collection is a strong and united statement by a group of early career researchers who insist on the vitality of biography as a central concern of historians across the disciplines of the humanities Contributors believe that the life is a fundamental medium of study for the medieval and early modern periods and thus bolsters the move back towards biography as a primary tool of medieval and early modern scholars as well as a tool for future research for humanities scholars interested in biography Slavery in the City Clifton Ellis, Rebecca Ginsburg, 2017-07-24 Countering the widespread misconception that slavery existed only on plantations and that urban areas were immune from its impacts Slavery in the City is the first volume to deal exclusively with the impact of North American slavery on urban design and city life during the antebellum period This groundbreaking collection of essays brings together studies from diverse disciplines including architectural history historical archaeology geography and American studies The contributors analyze urban sites and landscapes that are likewise varied from the back lots of nineteenth century Charleston townhouses to movements of enslaved workers through the streets of a small Tennessee town These essays not only highlight the diversity of the slave experience in the antebellum city and town but also clearly articulate the common experience of conflict inherent in relationships based on power resistance and adaptation Slavery in the City makes significant contributions to our understanding of American slavery and offers an essential guide to any study of slavery and the built environment

Historical Archaeology in Georgia J. W. Joseph, 2004 The Harvard Guide to African-American History Evelyn Brooks Higginbotham, 2001 This massive guide sponsored by the W E B Du Bois Institute for Afro American Research at Harvard University and compiled by renowned experts offers a compendium of information and interpretation on over 500 years of black experience in America Historical Archaeology ,2001 Historical Archaeology, Identity Formation, and the Interpretation of Ethnicity Maria Franklin, Garrett Fesler, 1999 The Larder John T. Edge, Elizabeth S. D. Engelhardt, Ted Ownby, Sara Camp Milam, 2013-10-15 The sixteen essays in The Larder argue that the study of food does not simply help us understand more about what we eat and the foodways we embrace. The methods and strategies herein help scholars use food and foodways as lenses to examine human experience. The resulting conversations provoke a deeper understanding of our overlapping historically situated and evolving cultures and societies. The Larder presents some of the most influential scholars in the discipline today from established authorities such as Psyche Williams Forson to emerging thinkers such as Rien T Fertel writing on subjects as varied as hunting farming and marketing as well as examining restaurants iconic dishes and cookbooks. Editors John T Edge Elizabeth Engelhardt and Ted Ownby bring together essays that demonstrate that food studies scholarship as practiced in the American South sets methodological standards for the discipline. The essayists ask questions about gender race and ethnicity as they explore issues of identity and authenticity. And they offer new ways to think about material culture technology and the business of food. The Larder is not driven by nostalgia. Reading such a collection of essays may not encourage food metaphors. It's not a feast not a gumbo certainly not a home cooked meal. Ted Ownby argues in his closing essay. Instead it's a healthy step in the right direction taken by the leading scholars in the field.

Behaviour Behind Bones Sharyn Jones O'Day, Wim Van Neer, Anton Ervynck, 2003-12-01 This book is the first in a series of volumes which form the published proceedings of the 9th meeting of the International Council of Archaeozoology ICAZ held in Durham in 2002. The 35 papers present a series of case studies from around the world. They stretch beyond the standard zooarchaeological topics of economy and ecology and consider how zooarchaeological research can contribute to our understanding of human behaviour and social systems. The volume is divided into two parts. Part 1 Beyond Calories focuses on the zooarchaeology of ritual and religion. Contributors discuss ways to approach questions of ritual and religion through the faunal record and consider how material culture depicting and or associated with animals can provide clues about ideology religious practices and the role of animals within spiritual systems. Part 2 Equations for Inequality looks at questions of identity status and other forms of social differentiation in former human societies. Contributors discuss how differences in food consumption nutrition and food procurement strategies can be related to various forms of social differentiation among individuals and groups.

Archaeology in America Linda S. Cordell, Kent Lightfoot, Francis McManamon, George Milner, 2008-12-30 The greatness of America is right under our feet. The American past the people battles industry and homes can be found not only in libraries and museums but also in hundreds of archaeological sites that scientists investigate with great care. These sites are not in distant lands accessible only by research scientists but nearby almost every locale possesses a parcel of land worthy of archaeological exploration. Archaeology in America is the first resource that provides students researchers and anyone interested in their local history with a survey of the most important archaeological discoveries in North America Leading scholars most with an intimate knowledge of the area have written in depth essays on over 300 of the most important archaeological sites that explain the importance of the site the history of the people who left the artifacts and the nature of the ongoing research Archaeology in America divides its coverage into 8 regions the Arctic and Subarctic the Great Basin and Plateau the Great Plains and Rocky Mountains the Midwest the Northeast the Southeast the Southwest and the West Coast Each entry provides readers with an accessible overview of the archaeological site as well as books and articles for further research A Historical Context and Archaeological Research Design for Townsite Properties in California ,2010 The Journal of American History Organization of American historians,1997 Encyclopedia of African American History 1619-1895 Paul Finkelman,2006 Publisher Description Journal of Middle Atlantic Archaeology ,1995 American Anthropologist, Volume 97, Number 3 ,1995 The North Carolina Historical Review ,2011 Washington History ,1997 America, History and Life ,1997 Article abstracts and citations of reviews and dissertations covering the United States and Canada
