Communication in Peace, Conflict in Communication Tuğrul İlter, 2008 Peace and Conflict are commonly understood as polar opposites In a polarised opposition there is no place for conflict in peace and peace the privileged term of the binary opposition needs to be pure and homogeneous cleansed of any unlicensed differences and contradictions Yet a radically plural and democratic politic must harbour conflicting and antagonistic views of things opposition is internal to it and its view of freedom says that freedom is always the freedom of those who think differently In contrast the ideal of a homogeneous self same indivisibly unified society is totalitarian and repressive of the very differences that make a society

any society possible The organizers of the 2nd International Conference on Communication and Media Studies at Eastern Mediterranean University 24 May 2007 thought that a deconstructive and feminist framework that destabilises the entrenched certain ties of polar oppositions and an ethical response to the irreducible otherness of the other as well as to one's own alterity would be very appropriate and relevant in our times for rethinking these issues and relied on that framework in formulating the theme of the conference as Communication in Peace Conflict in Communication to emphasise the interrelationship of the two parts separated by the slash as well as the formulation of the subtopics that were listed in the call for papers This volume includes work from around the world that responded to that call From the Margins to the Center Patricia Ann Sullivan, Lynn H. Turner, 1996 Examining the cases of Lani Guinier Hillary Rodham Clinton and Janet Reno the authors explore the rhetorical choices contemporary women are making in political discourse They frame this exploration theoretically by describing three moral boundaries that discourage women from entering political life the boundary between morality and politics the moral point of view boundary and the boundary between public and private life Guinier Clinton and Reno have each adopted different strategies in confronting these boundaries and in challenging gender stereotypes and their strategies dramatically illustrate the communication of contemporary political women Gender specific speaking behavior in a controversial discussion Maren Köppel, 2023-03-08 Seminar paper from the year 2020 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Other grade 1.0 University of Freiburg English Department language English abstract Over the past decades a great number of research has been conducted on the differences between male and female speaking behaviour Since many efforts have been made to establish equal opportunities for both genders several studies examined whether these changes are also reflected in their language Most of them concentrate on informal conversations in collegial settings and come to the conclusion that the differences are rather diminishing This study will focus on examining gender differences in language using a sequence of a controversial discussion which was published as a YouTube video It will give a brief review of the research within this area and then move on to analysing the recording Special focus will be put on specific linguistic items which have been carried out in previous studies of this field Gender Research in Africa Vivian Ojong, R.
