Stover, Harryette Stover, 1984 An imaginative way to learn the nuts and bolts of good writing Features a dramatized writing assignment interspersed with interviews to emphasize the process method Practical advice is offered by contemporary authors while mini documentaries filmed on location in business and government offices tackle real life writing problems emphasizing the need for clarity and organization The American School Board Journal, 1920 Exceptional Child Education Resources, 1996 Machine Scoring of Student Essays Patricia Freitag Ericsson, Richard Haswell, 2006-03-15 The current trend toward machine scoring of student work Ericsson and Haswell argue has created an emerging issue with implications for higher education across the disciplines but with particular importance for those in English departments and in administration The academic community has been silent on the issue some would say excluded from it while the commercial entities who develop essay scoring software have been very active Machine Scoring of Student Essays is the first volume to seriously consider the educational mechanisms and consequences of this trend and it offers important discussions from some of the leading scholars in writing assessment Reading and evaluating student writing is a time consuming process yet it is a vital part of both student placement and coursework at post secondary institutions In recent years commercial computer evaluation programs have been developed to score student essays in both of these contexts Two year colleges have been especially drawn to these programs but four year institutions are moving to them as well because of the cost savings they promise Unfortunately to a large extent the programs have been written and institutions are installing them without attention to their instructional validity or adequacy Since the education software companies are moving so rapidly into what they perceive as a promising new market a wider discussion of machine scoring is vital if scholars hope to influence development and or implementation of the programs being created What is needed then is a critical resource to help teachers and administrators evaluate programs they might be considering and to more fully envision the instructional consequences of adopting them And this is the resource that Ericsson and Haswell are providing here Scholastic Editor

Intelligent Help Rachel M. Pilkington,1992 This book stands at the fertile crossroads of cognitive psychology and computer science Because creating a computer system capable of providing intelligent help to the user requires a knowledge of how language and dialogue is constructed the book provides a broad introduction to the findings of cognitive science as they relate to natural language understanding text comprehension and the development of helping functions in computer systems The work thus combines practical artificial intelligence goals with a discussion of the research issues raised by computer science cognitive science and psycholinguistics Detailed discussion of the nature of expert user dialogue in the help context and some of the design issues raised will make the book useful for researchers and practitioners Oregon
