This book features real stories and advice from mothers in medicine at all stages of training from medical student to practicing physician and addresses the topics that shape the lives, joys and challenges of women in medicine today. The book is based on the best posts and wisdom shared on the Mothers in Medicine blog which was established in 2008 by the editor and has published over 1500 posts and has over 4.8 million page views to date. The book is organized by themes that are unique to the physician mother: career decisions, having children during training, navigating life challenges, practice issues and work life balance. Each chapter features an excerpt from the blog followed by an honest discussion of the key considerations, guidelines and tips as related to each topic in the conversational, personal tone of the blog. The book concludes with a chapter that features the most popular questions posted on the Mothers in Medicine blog and a summary of the responses received from the community of readers. Co-Design is an approach used in healthcare that integrates patient and care partner experiences into service and program development and delivery. Co-design involves both users and healthcare professionals or researchers working together to identify opportunities for improvement, set goals, evaluate progress and outcomes, and reflect on processes. Implementing a co-design process improves person-centered care and results in positive outcomes for both patients and staff. Research in this area has increased significantly over the previous 15 years; however, much of this work has been focused on primary care. It is important to focus on the use of co-design in rehabilitation settings specifically due to the unique goals of these programs. The goal of this Research Topic is to highlight the use of co-design in rehabilitation programming and to value the knowledge and experience of those with lived experience who use rehabilitation services.
