Domestic Abuse in the Novels of African American Women Heather Duerre Humann, 2014-05-23 The literary tradition begun by Zora Neale Hurston in the 1930s has since flourished and taken new directions with a diverse body of fiction by more contemporary African American women writers. This book examines the treatment of domestic violence in Hurston's Their Eyes Were Watching God, Gayl Jones's Corregidora, Gloria Naylor's The Women of Brewster Place and Linden Hills, Alice Walker's The Color Purple, Toni Morrison's The Bluest Eye and Love, Terry McMillan's Mama and A Day Late and a Dollar Short, and Octavia Butler's Seed to Harvest. These novels have given voice to oppressed and abused women. The aims of this work are threefold: to examine how female African American novelists portray domestic abuse; to outline how literary depictions of domestic violence are responsive to cultural and historical forces; and to explore the literary tradition of novels that deal with domestic abuse within the African American community.

Disappearing Acts Terry McMillan, 2004-01-06 From 1 New York Times bestselling author Terry McMillan comes an honest look at a modern romance: from love at first sight to painful reality to working toward a happy ending. Franklin Swift was a sometimes employed construction worker and a not quite divorced dad of two. Zora Banks was a teacher, singer and songwriter. They met in a Brooklyn brownstone and there could be no walking away. In this funny, gritty love story, Franklin and Zora join the ranks of fiction's most compelling couples as they move from Scrabble to sex, from layoffs to the limits of faith and trust. Disappearing Acts is about the mystery of desire and the burdens of the past. It's about respect, what it can and can't survive. And it's about the safe and secret places that only love can find. Common American Phrases in Everyday
