DATABASE 2 for OS/390, Version 5 SQL Reference International Business Machines Corporation, 1997. DB2 UDB for Z/OS Paolo Bruni, 2005. Conducting business via the Web and remaining open for business 24 hours a day, seven days a week, is now commonplace. Customers come in with unexpected workloads through the Web and operate in a self-service fashion with mostly context-sensitive metadata to guide them. The strong requirement is availability. However, even with new Web applications, most of the core business systems considerations still apply and performance is critical Technology has been accelerating for mainframe systems They had become adept at providing business resiliency accommodating strategic software that has been around for the last several decades such as IMSTM DB2 and CICS and they have also become a host for developing and running Web applications built in Java™ accommodating the latest business requirements Businesses need to leverage extend and integrate the strategic assets which represent multi year investments to support leading edge technology DB2 for z OS has come a long way and provides facilities to exploit the latest hardware and software technologies accommodating a majority of user requirements However special considerations are required to build high performance applications If you want to achieve high performance or high availability you must use the design programming and operational techniques applicable to DB2 In this IBM Redbooks publication we discuss many of these techniques and provide guidelines for database and application design We expect the best practices described in this book will help DB2 professionals design high performance and high availability applications Please note that the additional material referenced in the text is not available from IBM
