De Regulering Van Media In Internationaal Perspectief:

Media Policy for the Digital Age Netherlands Scientific Council for Government Policy, 2025-10-01 Traditionally the Netherlands has enjoyed being a test market for many ideas in the media But over the last decade progress has been severely hampered by lengthy discussions on the future structure of just one sector of media namely public broadcasting via radio and television The narrow approach results in a lot of paper speeches and theories but little in the way of definitive policy making In a report to the government published in February 2005 the Scientific Council for Government Policy WRR argued for very different approaches to policy making The recommendations are not only much broader than broadcasting they tackle the challenges of making robust policy from new angles Instead of trying to repair the old compass the approach has been to find new instruments to help policymakers navigate the stormy and often confusing waters ahead Perhaps the problem in the Netherlands is not accepting the new media but rather accepting that the role old media has undergone a paradigm shift Since the bulk of the WRR findings were published in the Dutch language this summary is intended to provide readers outside the Netherlands with an insight into the issues at stake and the solutions suggested by the WRR

Media Policy for the Digital Age, 2005 Traditionally the Netherlands has enjoyed status as a test market for new media But in the past decade such innovations have been severely hampered by questions about the future of public broadcasting This issue has led to abundant political grandstanding but little in the way of definitive policymaking In February 2005 the Scientific Council for Government Policy published a report with practical policy suggestions Media Policy for the Digital Age summarizes the Council's recommendations giving readers outside the Netherlands insight into the issues at stake and possible solutions as well as a concise analysis that tackles the challenges of making robust media policy for the twenty first century

Protecting Children in the Digital Era Eva Lievens, 2010-07-26 From the mid 1990s onwards concerns regarding the exposure of children to harmful content in the increasingly digital media environment intensified Soon thereafter policy makers across Europe realised that alternative regulatory instruments such as self and co regulation might be more appropriate than traditional legislation to address this matter of public interest Taking the complex and delicate nature of protecting minors into account this book provides an in depth legal analysis of the alternative regulatory instruments that can be used to regulate content in the digital era with particular attention to the protection of fundamental rights such as freedom of expression privacy and procedural guarantees internal market regulation competition rules and implementation requirements

Public Broadcasting and European Law Irini Katsirea, 2008-04-09 This important book examines the challenges posed to public service obligations by European Union media law and policy An in depth analysis of the extent to which six countries France Germany Greece Italy the Netherlands and the United Kingdom regulate broadcasting for the public interest reveals a range of vulnerability to national political pressures or alternatively to the ideology of market sovereignty The author examines the country of origin principle and the European quota rule of the Television without Frontiers Directive revealing the influence of European law on the definition and enforcement of programme requirements and shows how the case law of the European Court of Justice encourages deregulation at the national level without offering adequate safeguards at the supranational level in exchange. She asks the question whether the alleged European audiovisual model actually persists that is whether broadcasting is still committed to protecting such values as cultural diversity the safety of minors the susceptibility of consumers to advertising media pluralism and the fight against racial and religious hatred. The book concludes with an evaluation of the impact of the EU state aid regime on the licence fee based financing of public broadcasting.

Climate Strategy ,2007-05-01 Summary of the Dutch report Klimaatstrategie tussen ambitie en realisme published in June 2006 by the Netherlands Scientific Council for Government Policy WRR. The report was prepared by an internal working group at the WRR. The proposed climate strategy is based on three policy tracks: adaptation to climate change, reduction of greenhouse gas emissions and effective global coordination.
