Karplus,2013-11-11 Each day we are bombarded with news of a new catastrophe of worldwide proportions promising to obliterate a part if not all of humankind Confronted with these warnings of impending doom our best defense is to understand how valid or invalid these predictions of calamity are By perceiving these threats in a wise and sagacious way we can best meet future challenges by not earmarking precious resources for wrong or misleading reasons Walter Karplus a professor of computer sciences at UCLA in his 35 years of experience has made predictions for all kinds of phenomena by generating models and computer simulations His decades of experience have taught him what we can and cannot predict with any accuracy Dr Karplus surveys the most hotly debated catastrophes that many scientists have predicted will imminently endanger the lives of countless people all over the globe These catastrophes include the depletion of the ozone layer the Greenhouse Effect nuclear radiation acid rain the AIDS epidemic the population explosion another Great Depression and earthquakes Drawing on his superb background he assesses the strengths and weaknesses of arguments propounding the seriousness of these calamities All the while he never allows us to lose sight of the profound shortcomings of scientific prediction In his singularly engaging manner Dr Karplus traces the fascinating art of prediction from our earliest ancestors to today He pronounces at what point prediction even within science becomes a black art He elucidates the problems that computer simulations have in predicting events and goes on to pinpoint when and where these models lapse into the area of pure conjecture Through reason and wit Walter Karplus teaches us how to bring a trained eye to the predictions of disaster that unceasingly assault us The Heavens Are Falling is an illuminating and entertaining work that bestows on us the wisdom to make informed judgments before taking arms against a sea of troubles Life's Delicate Balance Janette Sherman,2014-05-01 With breast cancer rates soaring Life s Delicate Balance defines and documents many causes highlighting means to prevention Applicable to other cancers as well this book is being published at a critical time Patients their families environmental activists physicians attorneys and all of those working toward prevention will find this book interesting informative and insightful Science, Risk, and Policy Andrew J. Knight,2016-04-14 For decades experts and the public have been at odds over the nature and magnitude of risks and how they should be mitigated through policy. Experts argue that the fears of the public are irrational and that public policy should be based on sound science. The public on the other hand is skeptical of experts and believe policy should represent their interests. How do policy analysts make sense of these competing views? Science, Risk and Policy answers this question by examining how people evaluate evidence, how science is conducted and how a multi disciplinary framework to risk can inform policy by bridging the gap between experts and the public. This framework is then applied to four case studies: pesticides, genetically engineered foods, climate change and nuclear power. By tracing the history of the science policies and regulations and evaluating arguments made about these risks, Andrew J. Knight provides a guide to understand how experts and the public view risks.

Food and War in Mid-Twentieth-Century East Asia Katarzyna J. Cwiertka, 2016-04-15. War has been both an agent of destruction and a catalyst for innovation. These two at first sight contradictory yet mutually constitutive outcomes of war waging are particularly pronounced in twentieth century Asia. While 1945 marked the beginning of peaceful recovery for Europe, military conflicts continued to play a critical role in the historical development of this part of the world. In essence, all wars in twentieth century Asia stemmed from the political vacuum that developed after the fall of the Japanese Wartime Empire, intricately connecting one region with another. Yet they have had often very diverse consequences: shattering the homes of some and bringing about affluence to others. Disarray of war may halt economic activities and render many aspects of life insignificant. The need for food, however, cannot be ignored and the social action that it requires continues in all circumstances. This book documents the effects of war on the lives of ordinary people through the investigation of a variety of connections that developed between war waging and the production, distribution, preparation and consumption of food throughout Asia since the 1930s. The topics addressed range from issues at stake at the time of the conflicts, such as provisioning the troops and food rationing and food relief for civilians, to long term, often surprising consequences of war waging and wartime mobilization of resources on the food systems, diets and tastes of the societies involved. The main argument of this volume is that war has not been a mere disruption but rather a central force in the social and cultural trajectories of twentieth century Asia. Due to its close connection with human nourishment and comfort, food stands central in the life of the individual. On the other hand, owing to its connection with profit and power, food plays a critical role in the social and economic organization of a society. What happens to food and eating is therefore an important index of change, a privileged basis for the exploration of historical processes.
