Dynamics Of Globalization And Development:

Dynamics of Globalization and Development Satya Dev Gupta, 2011-09-26 Dynamics of Globalization and Development debates the role of structural adjustment programs and policies the implication of financial liberalization for growth and stability the effects of foreign direct investment and the associated behavior of multinationals in terms of intellectual property rights the diffusion of technology growth and development Many contributors offer innovative insights into the complexities of the process in terms of its micro foundations and propose efficiency based multinational policy frameworks A general thrust of most of the studies in this volume is that the market driven process of globalization alone will not lead to stable and equitable economic growth Consequently several contributors recommend a set of proactive policies to promote greater stability in the system and a more equitable distribution of the benefits of globalization This anthology will provide valuable insights and important background analysis for scholars working in the field of globalization as well as senior undergraduate and graduate students in a variety of curricula including economics finance development studies and international studies

Development Dynamics and Globalization Charis Vlado, 2019 The process of development in every spatial level regional national and local seems to acquire nowadays a new context and a new evolutionary architecture The globalization dynamics are restructuring the developmental process as well as the expected results They constitute the foundational dimension of modern reality and determine the main frame of analysis of the effort to understand the contemporary phenomenon of development Under these circumstances the old ethnocentric perspective seems to be facing progressively some insuperable interpretive deadlocks Especially within the ongoing globalization dynamics all the international regional and local development dimensions are transcending the narrow ethnocentric view of development and for every of its aspects whether these are of economic social cultural or geostrategic importance Moreover a new theoretical reorientation seems to be required in order to understand and interpret the present developmental stagnation of the European South and especially to empower its socioeconomic competitiveness And this reorientation should resynthesizes all the parts of the development dynamics in the ongoing phase of globalization economic social cultural and institutional Over this course of development the evolutionary economics and the international political economy perspectives seem to provide a much more fertile context to understand reality especially when compared to the conventional neoclassical or Keynesian theory of international economic relations More specifically the future study of institutional dimensions of the developmental process will be at the center of all developmental perspectives

Impact of Globalization on Rural Development Md. Mizanur Rahman, 2013-02-28 Research Paper undergraduate from the year 2013 in the subject Politics Topic Globalization Political Economics Thammasat University Bangkok National Institute of Development Administration NIDA Bangkok Thailand language English abstract In a globalized world the dynamics of rural development in Bangladesh has changed immensely Globalization free trade and privatization have brought about many positive and negative impacts on rural development This article tries to focus on three major impacts of globalization on rural development such as impact on environment poverty and women In responding to the research questions that how globalization affected environmental degradation what impact it has done on poverty reduction and women in Bangladesh the author used a combination of both quantitative and qualitative methods From the content analysis it was observed that globalization has seriously affected environment such as land degradation deforestation soil erosion soil fertility loss water logging salinity and toxification of soils damage and destruction of coral reefs mangroves fisheries loss of bio diversity and ecosystem pollution of air and water bodies etc that caused huge environmental disasters in Bangladesh The research findings relating to impact of globalization on poverty reduction unearthed the fact that due to huge remittance from the expatriate foreign labours exponential increases of agricultural growth especially in cereal crops and increase in labour cost have contributed to reduction of rural poverty in Bangladesh The increase of agricultural growth was the end result of massive privatization of agricultural sector in Bangladesh that in fact helped the rich farmers to adopt HYV and modern agricultural practices agrochemicals pesticides fertilizers and privatization also helped them availing of low cost tube wells and agricultural inputs increase of irrigation facilities But the poor farmers were hardly affected by the privatization strategy But the negative scenario in case of poverty is that globalization has increased income inequality in Bangladesh Lastly from both content analysis and case studies it was found that globalization has created employment opportunities of women in the garments industries RMG in the export processing zones of Bangladesh Mostly these women are the poverty stricken women who migrated to city areas from rural areas for employment but the foreign investors are exploited these women by providing a low salary and employed them excessive hours for ensuring their optimum production

Globalization Trends and Regional Development Roberta Capello, Tomaz Ponce Dentinho, 2012-01-01 Global trends and local effects have been almost ubiquitous since the 1980s However few like this book have successfully examined the local effects of global trends and processes Each of this book's ten chapters provides an empirically based analysis that illuminates the local effects driven by global forces Roger Stough George Mason University US This timely book investigates the challenges that emerge for local economies when faced with the new globalization trends that characterize today's world economy In this instance globalization is interpreted as a process of internationalization of production and markets which can take various forms such as increasing international trade or increasing foreign direct investments all of which give rise to the growing integration and interdependency of European economies with regard to the other main world economies the expert contributors use a fresh perspective in their analysis of globalization trends emphasizing recent changes and providing an up to date picture of current developments in both foreign investments and the consequent migration of human capital Qualitative rather than quantitative trends in human capital and financial capital flows are taken into account with a particular focus on their impacts on regional growth perspectives Highlighting the European economy's strengths and weaknesses in facing the challenges of the new globalization trends this book will provide a stimulating read for a wide ranging audience encompassing scholars of regional science regional economics economic and regional geography international economics and international business
