Customs Modernization Initiatives Luc De Wulf, José B. Sokol, 2004 A companion to the Customs Modernization Handbook this book provides case studies on customs modernization initiatives in seven countries Bolivia Morocco Mozambique Peru the Philippines Turkey and Uganda The initiatives in each of these countries show similarities as well as differences in their approach and design Some have relied on a model of independent revenue authorities Uganda and Peru others have called upon private sector service providers to initiate the modernization process Mozambique others have taken the drastic step of a complete overhaul of their customs staff Bolivia and Mozambique others introduced new information technology to streamline customs processes and to integrate other members of the trading community into an electronic network Ghana while still others have approached the modernization process as a pragmatic well focused result oriented process Customs Modernization Handbook Luc De Wulf, Jose B. Sokol, 2005-01-03 Trade integration contributes substantially to economic development and poverty alleviation In recent years much progress was made to liberalize the trade regime but customs procedures are often still complex costly and non transparent This situation leads to misallocation of resources Customs Modernization Handbook provides an overview of the key elements of a successful customs modernization strategy and draws lessons from a number of successful customs reforms as well as from customs reform projects that have been undertaken by the World Bank It describes a number of key import procedures that have proved particularly troublesome for customs administrations and traders and provides practical guidelines to enhance their efficiency The Handbook also reviews the appropriate legal framework for customs operations as well as strategies to combat corruption

Customs Modernization Initiatives Luc de Wulf, José B. Sokol, 2004 With an increasing awareness amongst countries and development agencies of the importance of policies which facilitate and improve the flow of goods and services across borders this publication sets out 8 country case studies Bolivia Ghana Morocco Mozambique Peru Philippines Turkey Uganda examining improved customs administrative systems Such improvements can offer great benefits such as improved market access lowered tariffs reduced transportation costs and better communications Also an effective customs administration system can act as a catalyst for economic development These case studies highlight both the successes and failures of such customs administrative programmes and is a companion volume to the Customs Modernization Handbook ISBN 0821357514 OECD Trade Policy Studies Overcoming Border Bottlenecks The Costs and Benefits of Trade Facilitation OECD, 2009-01-19 Six studies that examine how border bottlenecks affect trade and investment flows how these bottlenecks might be reduced and whether the expense involved is worth it

Implementing a WTO Agreement on Trade Facilitation J. M. Finger, John Sullivan Wilson, 2006 Contrary to the prevailing view that the Doha negotiations have achieved little the authors find that on trade facilitation much progress has been made This is particularly true in regard to action by development banks and bilateral development agencies to meet client demand for assistance in reform Active private sector participation has been an important factor driving change. Many agencies have been involved in this work. The authors find that their roles have been consistent with their comparative advantages. As to how the international community can best support continued progress, the authors conclude in favor of a cautious approach to the imposition of new WTO obligations in the area of trade facilitation. On the whole, this is the approach the WTO has taken for example by limiting its negotiations on trade facilitation to several specific provisions of the GATT. The WTO can continue to function as a catalyst for reform. It is perhaps uniquely placed to relate the trade facilitation agenda to the overall trade agenda. On design and construction of the relevant infrastructures and capacities to spur development, the development institutions including bilateral agencies should continue to lead. The authors find little evidence to support the need for a comprehensive new platform or mechanism to channel trade related aid as part of implementation of any new agreement at the WTO on trade facilitation. They recommend however that an innovative approach to using the well established but under utilized Trade Policy Review Mechanism be considered to increase transparency on where new aid is going over time and to expand understanding of where and how country based progress has been achieved. Putting Nigeria to Work Volker Treichel, 2010-06-17. Public debate in Nigeria on the country's progress since its return to democracy in 1999 has been dominated by two seemingly opposite themes. The first theme is the strong growth performance of the non oil economy. This success has been marked by sharp increases in agriculture trade and construction and by the emergence of new industries in the financial telecommunications and entertainment sectors supported by sound macroeconomic policies and structural reforms. The second opposing theme is the seeming failure of Nigeria's much improved economic performance to reduce unemployment especially among the young. Rising levels of unemployment have increased militancy among the young and impacted negatively on public order. Putting Nigeria to Work: A Strategy for Employment and Growth looks at the ways in which Nigeria's improved economic performance has impacted the labor market. A number of relevant factors are carefully examined and analyzed including industrial policy and the investment environment, the effects of restrictive trade policies on growth and the ability of the technical and vocational education system to address the country's skills gap. The book proposes a strategy that will allow Nigeria to increase the availability of quality jobs, reduce rising youth unemployment and sustain and further accelerate the country's economic performance and growth. At the core of this strategy are targeted interventions aimed at removing binding constraints to growth in sectors of the economy that are already growing fast but have the potential to grow faster and have significant employment creating potential.

Aid for Trade and Development Dominique Njinkeu, Hugo Cameron, 2007-12-24. Following in the wake of the World Trade Organization's engagement with Aid for Trade, this book brings together a range of perspectives around this emerging issue. The collection of articles in this volume presents many of the ideas elaborated through research conducted by International Lawyers and Economists Against Poverty (ILEAP) since 2005 and is intended to provide a basis for further study. Since many of the contributions on aid for trade to date have come from the North the book looks to deepen the debate by forwarding voices and experiences from the South The book traces the evolution of Aid for Trade from its beginnings and examines the global architecture modalities and costs associated with its implementation Drawing on lessons from national and regional experiences this book further explores ways in which Aid for Trade can both move forward and become a real tool for poverty reduction in beneficiary countries
