Cyberactivism Online Activism In Theory And Practice:

Cyberactivism Martha McCaughey, Michael D. Ayers, 2003 The Internet has played a central role in some of the most successful instances of contemporary political activism This book examines the growing importance of this aspect of activism including the politically motivated sabotage of commercial websites Cybersounds Michael D. Ayers, 2006 Textbook Internet Fictions Ingrid Hotz-Davies, Anton Kirchhofer, Sirpa Leppänen, 2008-12-18 The Internet is nothing less than a medium for the indiscriminate and global dissemination of information if we take information in its cybernetic sense as bits of data any data As such it is also a massive amorphous rhizomic collection of substantiated facts guesswork fantasy madness debate criminal energy big business stupidity brilliance all in all a seemingly limitless multiplication of voices all clamouring to be heard It is a medium which proliferates stories narratives fictions in ways which are both new and familiar It is as a generator of fictions that the Internet seems to be just waiting to be explored by the disciplines of literary cultural and linguistic studies Fan fiction slash and straight scam baiting fan sites wild or rogue interpretive universes gossip theories musings opinions As a singularly unstructured and hence as yet uncanonizable body of texts the stories told on the Internet have a distinct element of grass roots fictionalization and so offer an unprecedented opportunity to access hear and investigate the stories and fantasies woven by non professional writers alongside their more formally recognized colleagues As a medium which is beginning to investigate itself by means of various meta debates within the vast community of Internet fictionalizers it is also a location where emergent phenomena may be debated in their process of being generated This collection seeks to explore this for the most part uncharted territory in creative innovative theory savvy ways using the manifold fictions the Internet generates It brings together a wide variety of expertise from the fields of linguistic literary media and cultural studies All contributors bring to the collection their individual voices and approaches which speak from various positions of involvedness or critique to provide searching and passionate discussions of the issues involved in Internet Fictions The Networked Young Citizen Brian D. Loader, Ariadne Vromen, Michael Xenos, 2014-06-05 The future engagement of young citizens from a wide range of socio economic ethnic and cultural backgrounds in democratic politics remains a crucial concern for academics policy makers civics teachers and youth workers around the world At a time when the negative relationship between socio economic inequality and levels of political participation is compounded by high youth unemployment or precarious employment in many countries it is not surprising that new social media communications may be seen as a means to re engage young citizens This edited collection explores the influence of social media such as YouTube Facebook and Twitter upon the participatory culture of young citizens This collection comprising contributions from a number of leading international scholars in this field examines such themes as the possible effects of social media use upon patterns of political socialization the potential of social media to ameliorate young people s political inequality the role of social media communications for enhancing the civic education curriculum and evidence for social media manifesting new forms of political engagement and participation by young citizens These issues are considered from a number of theoretical and methodological approaches but all attempt to move beyond simplistic notions of young people as an undifferentiated category of the internet generation Community Organizing and Community Building for Health Meredith

Minkler,2005 User-Centric Technology Design for Nonprofit and Civic Engagements Saqib Saeed,2014-04-26 Due to the increased global political importance of the nonprofit sector its technological support and organizational characteristics have become important fields of research In order to conduct effective work nonprofits need to communicate and coordinate effectively However such settings are generally characterized by a lack of resources an absence of formal hierarchical structures and differences in languages and culture among the activists Modern technologies could help nonprofit networks in improving their working In order to design appropriate technological support for such settings it is important to understand their work practices which widely differ from traditional business organizations This book aims to strengthen the body of knowledge by providing user studies and concepts related to user centered technology design process for nonprofit settings The examination of ethnographic studies and user centered evaluation of IT artifacts in practice will further the understanding of design requirements of these systems This book includes chapters from leading scholars and practitioners on the technology design process examining human centered factors The chapters will focus on developed and developing countries as they both have unique issues in technology design The book will be useful or of interest to academics from a range of fields including information systems human computer interaction computer supported cooperative work and organizational science as well as for government officials and governmental organizations Cyberactivism on the Participatory Web Martha McCaughey,2014-04-16 Cyberactivism already has a rich history but over the past decade the participatory web with its de centralized information media sharing portability storage capacity and user generated content has reshaped political and social change Cyberactivism on the Participatory Web examines the impact of these new technologies on political organizing and protest across the political spectrum from the Arab Spring to artists to far right groups Linking new information and communication technologies to possibilities for solidarity and action as well as surveillance and control in a context of global capital flow war and environmental crisis the contributors to this volume provide nuanced analyses of the dramatic transformations in media citizenship and social movements taking place today

Civic Engagement and Social Media J. Uldam,A. Vestergaard,2015-05-19 The Occupy movement and the Arab Spring have brought global attention to the potential of social media for empowering otherwise marginalized groups This book addresses questions like what happens after the moment of protest and global visibility and whether social media can also help sustain civic engagement beyond protest International Handbook of Internet Research Jeremy Hunsinger,Lisbeth Klastrup,Matthew Allen,2010-06-17 Internet research spans many disciplines From the computer or information sciences through engineering and to social sciences humanities and the arts almost all of our disciplines have made contributions to internet research whether in the effort to understand the effect of the internet on their area of study or to investigate the social and political changes related to the internet or to design and develop software and hardware for the network. The possibility and extent of contributions of internet research vary across disciplines as do the purposes, methods and outcomes. Even the epistemological underpinnings differ widely. The internet then does not have a discipline of study for itself. It is a field for research. Baym 2005: an open environment that simultaneously supports many approaches and techniques not otherwise commensurable with each other. There are of course some inhibitions that limit explorations in this field: research ethics, disciplinary conventions, local and national norms, customs, laws, borders and so on. Yet these limits on the internet as a field for research have not prevented the rapid expansion and exploration of the internet. After nearly two decades of research and scholarship, the limits are a positive contribution providing bases for discussion and interrogation of the contexts of our research, making internet research better for all. These limits challenge the theoretically limitless space for internet research, create boundaries that give definition to the field and provide us with a particular topography that enables research and investigation.

Javnost, 2008. Journal of Public Policy, 2005. Asian Cyberactivism Steven Gan, James Gomez, Uwe Johannsen, 2004. Asian Cyberactivism: Freedom of Expression and Media Censorship aims to record political activism on the Internet and take stock of some of the successes and failures of cyberactivists as they try to beat the various censorship regimes in Asia. The sections of this 664 page book comprise of Political Frameworks, New Technology, Regulations and Control, One Party States, Alternative Media, Civil Society, Diaspora Communities and Political Parties. The book's 18 chapters provide an overview of current trends in democracy related new media research to country specific case studies. The common thread running through the book is the organizing of civil society groups at the grassroots level and how they are influencing certain segments of their respective countries and even challenging state control and the monopoly of mainstream media Asian Cyberactivism strives to examine political organising online in Asia even as the technology and the rules change Activists provide their perspectives on how new media relates to democracy and showcase examples that could be emulated to further the cause of democracy Expressions of free speech have blossomed with the advent of new communications technologies like the Internet but with the Internet itself becoming a target for censorship regulation and control it remains to be seen if cyberactivists in Asia will be able to overcome or bypass them
