Challenge To Imperialism The Frontline States In The Liberation Of Zimbabwe:

Challenge To Imperialism Carol B. Thompson, 2019-08-27 Challenge to Imperialism is the first comprehensive analysis of the Zimbabwean struggle for independence in its international context Based on extensive research in the southern African region and on interviews with the ZANU and ZAPU leaders in exile during the war this study is an analysis of the crucial support given to the Zimbabwean nationalists by the five Frontline States Angola Botswana Mozambique Tanzania and Zambia The book begins with a summary of the variable relations among the Frontline States and between those states and the Zimbabwean nationalists More than once Frontline governments put Zimbabwean nationalists in their own jails as tensions arose over leadership conduct of the war and terms for peace Yet the Frontline States maintained their support in spite of the extremely high cost to their own economic development How could these weak and economically dependent states confront the dominant interests in the region Was Lancaster House simply a capitulation to imperialist interests a constitution forced on the nationalists by the beleaguered Frontline States This theoretical analysis addresses the complexity of these questions and suggests lessons for the current struggles in Namibia and in South Africa Further Dr Thompson discusses the formation of the Southern African Development Coordination Conference SADCC as an attempt to transform the Zimbabwean political victory into regional economic cooperation This study of the political and economic background of Zimbabwean independence is important not only to those concerned about Zimbabwe and southern Africa but also to those interested in the nature of liberation struggles and in the role of the state in developing countries

Norms in International Relations Audie Klotz, 2018-09-05 In this second edition of Norms in International Relations Audie

Klotz revisits the global struggle against apartheid and considers its impact on how we grapple with race and racism in international relations today Originally published in the wake of South Africa's democratic transition Norms in International Relations documented how sustained international activism transformed apartheid from a domestic injustice into a global problem Through chapters on multilateral institutions and bilateral pressures Klotz showed how sanctions campaigns challenged state interests and reshaped global norms This second edition retains the original chapters as a historical snapshot of late Cold War diplomacy while new material traces the evolving meaning of apartheid itself from a uniquely racialized regime to a more diffuse symbol of inequality Klotz cautions that as apartheid becomes a generalized moral shorthand its roots in systemic anti Blackness risk being obscured Bringing together case study specificity with broad contemporary resonance this second edition invites readers to rethink the politics of race resistance and norm diffusion in international relations and to confront what the field still too often leaves out

The New is Not Yet Born Thomas Ohlson, Stephen John Stedman, Robert H. Davies, 1994 In April 1994 black and white South Africans for the first time voted in a nonracial election for a democratic government This watershed election is one of many recent profound changes in Southern Africa including independence in Namibia democratic elections in Zambia and Malawi a peace agreement in Mozambique and renewed civil war in Angola The New Is Not Yet Born explores the sources and dynamics of the political economic and diplomatic transformations taking place in Southern Africa Thomas Ohlson Stephen John Stedman and Robert Davies recount how Southern Africa has long endured violent domestic and interstate conflicts often complicated and intensified by external interventions and interests The cost of these struggles by all measures has been staggering The authors show how conflict in Southern Africa has left and continues to leave tremendous socioeconomic destruction They identify the past present and possible future sources of conflict in the region They describe the security implications of conflict and evaluate the institutions organizations and policies that might help reduce or resolve conflict and provide security for the people and countries of Southern Africa Although the democratic transition in South Africa opens the possibility of creating a secure Southern Africa the authors note that past conflict legacies and new unanticipated conflicts could stand in the way They conclude that the challenge ahead will be to establish new national and regional institutions which enable actors to resolve conflict without resorting to violence This book suggests ways that international action can help the birth of a new Southern Africa
