Keith Neilson

Changing Of The Guard Anglo American Relations 1941 1946:

A Changing of the Guard Randall Bennett Woods, 1990 Between 1941 and 1946 in response to the devastation caused by World War II memories of the Great Depression and the prospect of Soviet expansion a group of politicians diplomats and economists in the United States and Great Britain sought to repair the ruined economies of Europe and secure economic prosperity for America Their program which became known as multilateralism called for reduced quotas on imports lowered tariffs the abandonment of currency exchange controls and economic decision making by international bodies Randall Woods explores this attempt to create an interdependent world economy and sets it against the broader political and strategic backdrop of the period In the United States multilateralism attracted New Deal liberals because it proposed to help not only the established economic interests but traditionally disadvantaged groups such as farmers and industrial workers as well Moderate socialists in Britain also lent their support to a liberalized trading system as did many conservatives on both sides of the Atlantic believing that the program would preserve some degree of free enterprise in the international economy Unfortunately for its disciples Woods argues multilateralism was so modified by the forces of isolationism and economic nationalism and by bureaucratic politics in the United States that it failed to achieve its economic and strategic goals The international economy that emerged after World War II was not an equitable partnership and merely finalized the fifty year process by which the United States supplanted Great Britain as the arbiter of Western Capitalism In the end modified multilateralism hampered rather than facilitated the free flow of goods and capital and it did little to promote social democracy

The British Way in Warfare: Power and the International System, 1856-1956 Keith Neilson, 2016-03-16 In his groundbreaking book The British Way in Warfare Routledge 1990 David French outlined the skillful combination of maritime economic and diplomatic power employed by Britain to achieve its international goals Almost two decades later this collection offers a reassessment of French's thesis using it as a lens through which to explore Britain's relationship with various kinds of power military and civil and how this was employed across the globe In particular each essay addresses the ways in which the use of power manifested itself in the maintenance of Britain's place within the international system between 1856 and 1956 Adopting twin methodologies the collection firstly addresses the broad question of Britain's relationship with other Great Powers and how these influenced the strategies used before then testing these with specific case studies By taking this approach it is possible to discern which policies were successful and which failed and whether these remained constant across time and space Measuring Britain's strategy against her commercial imperial and military competitors including France the USA Italy Germany and Russia allows intriguing conclusions to be drawn about just how an essentially maritime power could compete with much larger and potentially more powerful continental rivals With contributions from an outstanding selection of military scholars this collection addresses fundamental questions about the intersection of military economic and diplomatic history that are as relevant today as they were during the height of Britain's imperial power It will prove essential reading not only for those with an interest in British military history but for anyone wishing to understand how power in all its multifaceted guises can be employed for national advantage on the international stage

Rising Titans, Falling Giants Joshua R. Itzkowitz Shiffrin, 2018-09-15 As a rising great power flexes its muscles on the political military scene it must examine how to manage its relationships with states suffering from decline and it has to do so in a careful and strategic manner In Rising Titans Falling Giants Joshua R Itzkowitz Shiffrin focuses on the policies that rising states adopt toward their declining competitors in response to declining states policies and what that means for the relationship between the two Rising Titans Falling Giants integrates disparate approaches to realism into a single theoretical framework provides new insight into the sources of cooperation and competition in international relations and offers a new empirical treatment of great power politics at the start and end of the Cold War Shiffrin challenges the existing historical interpretations of diplomatic history particularly in terms of the United States China relationship Whereas many analysts argue that these two nations are on a collision course Shiffrin declares instead that rising states often avoid antagonizing those in decline and highlights episodes that suggest the US China relationship may prove to be far less conflict prone than we might expect

Diplomats at War Christopher Baxter, Andrew Stewart, 2008 The first half of the twentieth century had a dramatic impact upon the practice of diplomacy and the role of diplomats in wartime The advent of total war witnessed the rapid expansion of the diplomatic agenda and saw the transformation of overseas policy into wartime policy Regional and world conflicts would revolutionise the way embassies legations high commissions and governorships functioned posing formidable challenges to the authority of heads of missions whose job it was to manage the bilateral relations for which they were responsible With contributions from leading scholars on various British and Commonwealth heads of mission this book provides a fascinating survey of diplomats and their responses to the vicissitudes of war making an important contribution to twentieth century diplomatic history Contributors include Ian Nish Keith Hamilton Keith Neilson T G Otte Greg Kennedy Carl Bridge David Lee Kent Fedorowich Ashley Jackson and David Lowe
