Change and Environmental Policymaking in Mexico Jordi Diez, 2013-10-31 This book explores environmental policymaking in Mexico as a vehicle to understanding the broader changes in the policy process within a system undergoing a democratic transformation It constitutes the first major analysis of environmental policymaking in Mexico at the national level and examines the implementation of forestry policy in Mexico's largest rain forest the Selva Lacandona of the state of Chiapas Climate Change and Globalization in the Arctic E. vulnerability assessment is a rapidly developing field However despite the fact that such major trends as globalization and the changing characteristics of the political and economic governance systems are crucial in shaping a community's capacity to adapt to climate change these trends are seldom included in assessments This book addresses this shortcoming by developing a framework for qualitative vulnerability assessment in multiple impact studies of climate change and globalization and applying this framework to several cases of renewable natural resource use The book draws upon case studies of forestry and fishing two of the largest sectors that rely on renewable natural resources and reindeer herding in the European North The study represents a bottom up view originating with the stakeholders themselves of the degree to which stakeholders find adaptation to climate change possible and how they evaluate it in relation to their other concerns notably economic and political ones Moreover the approach and research results include features that could be broadly generalized to other geographic areas or sectors characterized by renewable natural resource use Co-benefits of Sustainable Forestry

Kanehiro Kitayama, 2012-09-24 Tropical rain forests are increasingly expected to serve for climate change mitigation and biodiversity conservation amid global climate change and increasing human demands for land Natural production forests that are legally designated to produce timber occur widely in the Southeast Asian tropics Synergizing timber production climate change mitigation and biodiversity conservation in such tropical production forests is one of the most realistic means to resolve these contemporary global problems Next generation sustainable forest management is being practiced in the natural tropical rain forest of a model site in Sabah Malaysian Borneo while earlier sustainable management practices have generally failed leading to extensive deforestation and forest degradation elsewhere in the tropics Ecologists have examined co benefits of sustainable forestry in the model forest in terms of forest regeneration carbon sequestration and biodiversity in comparison to a forest managed by destructive conventional methods Taxonomic groups studied have included trees decomposers soil microbes insects and mammals A wide array of field methods and technology has been used including count plots sensor cameras and satellite remote sensing This book is a compilation of the results of those thorough ecological investigations and elucidates ecological processes of tropical rain forests after logging The book furnishes useful information for foresters and conservation NGOs and it also provides baseline information for biologists and ecologists A further aim is to examine the environmental effects of a forest certification scheme as the model forest has been certified by the Forest Stewardship Council Taken as a whole this book proves that the desired synergy is possible Economic Modeling
