Changing Organizations And Community Programs Sage Human Services Guides:

Creating Small Scale Social Programs Barbara Schram, 1997-10-14 Built around a single case study Creating New Agency Programs clearly illustrates how to effectively plan implement and evaluate a small scale social program Each step in the planning process is introduced and described in a way that allows the reader to vicariously participate in the evolution of the program Useful charts time lines and resource lists are included and can be easily referenced and utilized This book s emphasis on planning is important not only because it is a much used and generally under taught skill but because successful planning is the process that can turn the dreams of a community into concrete reality This book is geared toward designing programs to meet specific social needs and organizing the relevant and human resources to implement them The programs are specific detail and activity oriented but are designed to support long range goals which may be handed down by a parent organization or the community in general The author s strategy of using a case study serves as a creative learning tool that leads readers through each practical step toward successfully creating their own small scale social program Filling the void of literature on designing programs Creating New Agency Programs is ideal for professionals and students in a variety fields social work human services clinical counseling psychology drugs and alcohol psychology nursing and management who are faced with the task of planning designing and evaluating a program

Family Assessment Adele Holman, 1983-06 A practical guide for human service workers and students which describes and shows techniques for use in assessing families The author reviews a conceptual basis of family assessment in chapters that focus on the family as a system the family and its environment and the family life cycle She goes on to describe such methods of assessment as the ecomap the genogram family sculpture and the use of observation and checklists Throughout the guide case examples are used to illustrate concepts and show the techniques in use A special feature of particular value is the self teaching exercises designed to give the reader practice in applying these ideas and methods A concluding chapter relates family assessment to treatment or intervention

Practice of Case Management David P. Moxley, 1989 The Practice of Case Management in the Human Services offers a succinct yet comprehensive guide to carrying out a case manager s responsibilities The author explores assessment of the service needs of the client facilitating the client s contact with the appropriate institutions and services monitoring the quality of services provided to the client and taking action when the client s needs are not met He also considers the therapeutic role required when needs are not met because the problems are indigenous to the client Providing an integrated look at practice technologies applicable to a variety of practice areas the volume is appropriate for both preservice and inservice education in the field of human servi

Implementing Change in Service Programs Morris Schaefer, 1987 This guide offers practical directions for systematically effecting revisions in social service programmes Schaefer explains in a step by step manner what must be done between the making of strategic decisions and putting new or changed service systems into operation Schaefer gives expert guidance on a critical phase of management in any human service organization through examples and problems he shows how to respond effectively and efficiently to change imperatives

Understand Social Agency Armand Lauffer, 1984-11 This revised and expanded Second Edition of the widely read Understanding Your Social Agency offers students and practitioners a simple yet comprehensive introduction to organizational theory and its meaning for social agencies Each of the first ten chapters is devoted to a particular perspective for understanding the agency The final chapter considers using each of the ten perspectives independently or in tandem to solve problems within or on behalf of the agency It will be a useful guide to solving problems of an organizational nature within an agency

Building Coalitions in the Human Services Milan J. Dluhy, Sanford L. Kravitz, 1990-05 This book focuses positively on a particular kind of politics of scarcity how human service groups can join forces and work together in coalitions in order to manoeuvre government resources more effectively generate new non governmental resources and find substitute funds The book briefly reviews the experiences of thirteen coalitions and describes how to organize develop and maintain a coalition Exercises give readers the opportunity to apply the knowledge presented in each chapter

Needs Assessment Keith A. Neuber, 1980 The Community Oriented Needs Assessment CONA model presented by the authors demonstrates that effective two way communication between providers of human services and the community is necessary for effective and efficient social services The CONA model uses data from demographic statistical profiles key informants and random community members to define needed services to develop programs to enhance interagency cooperation and to improve accountability The authors both outline the logic behind the use of this model and sketch a step by step approach for developing the model for use in a variety of settings

Changing the System Milan J. Dluhy, 1981 Designing and Implementing Procedures for Health and Human Services Morris Schaefer, 1985-10 Schaefer presents the basic concepts and management guidelines for social service workers and students for the design and implementation of policy and procedures Procedures tell people how social service work is to be carried out they embody specific policies and standards and convert abstractions into concrete instructions They also offer an important managerial tool since they are the mechanism through which the objectives of the social service are reached
