Challenges and Choices for Crime-Fighting Technology Federal Support of State and Local Law Enforcement

William Schwabe, Lois M. Davis, Brian A. Jackson, 2001-10-23 Under the American federal system most law is cast as state statutes and local ordinances accordingly most law enforcement is the responsibility of state and local agencies Federal law and federal law enforcement come into play only where there is rationale for it consistent with the Constitution Within this framework a clear role has been identified for federal support of state and local agencies This report provides findings of a study of technology in use or needed by law enforcement agencies at the state and local level for the purpose of informing federal policymakers as they consider technology related support for these agencies In addition it seeks to characterize the obstacles that exist to technology adoption by law enforcement agencies and to characterize the perceived effects of federal assistance programs intended to facilitate the process The study findings are based on a nationwide Law Enforcement Technology Survey and a similar Forensics Technology Survey FTS conducted in late spring and early summer 2000 interviews conducted throughout the year focus groups conducted in autumn 2000 and review of an extensive largely nonacademic literature Companion reports Schwabe William Needs and Prospects for Crime Fighting Technology The Federal Role in Assisting State and Local Law Enforcement Santa Monica Calif RAND 1999 Davis Lois M William Schwabe and Ronald Fricker Challenges and Choices for Crime Fighting Technology Results from Two Nationwide Surveys Santa Monica Calif RAND 2001 Challenges and Choices for Crime-Fighting Technology. Federal Support of State and Local Law Enforcement, 2001 This report provides findings of a study of technology in use or needed by law enforcement agencies at the state and local level for the purpose of informing federal policymakers as they consider technology related support for these agencies In addition it seeks to characterize the obstacles that exist to technology adoption by law enforcement agencies and characterize the perceived impact of federal assistance programs intended to facilitate the process The study findings are based on a nationwide Law Enforcement Technology Survey LETS and a similar Forensics Technology Survey FTS conducted in late spring and early summer 2000 interviews conducted throughout the year focus groups conducted in autumn 2000 and review of an extensive largely non academic literature Protecting Emergency Responders Volume 2 Tom LaTourrette, D. J. Peterson, James T. Bartis, Brian A. Jackson, Ari Houser, 2003-08-21 Firefighters law enforcement officers and emergency medical service responders play a critical role in protecting people and property in the event of fires medical emergencies terrorist acts and numerous other emergencies The authors examine the hazards that responders face and the personal protective technology needed to contend with those hazards The findings are based on in depth discussions with 190 members of the emergency responder community and are intended to help define the protective technology needs of responders and develop a comprehensive personal protective technology research agenda Army Science and Technology for Homeland Security National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Army

Science and Technology, Committee on Army Science and Technology for Homeland Defense -- C4ISR, 2004-08-03 Shortly after the events of September 11 2001 the U S Army asked the National Research Council NRC for a series of reports on how science and technology could assist the Army meet its Homeland defense obligations The first report Science and Technology for Army Homeland Security Report 1 presented a survey of a road range of technologies and recommended applying Future Force technologies to homeland security wherever possible In particular the report noted that the Army should play a major role in providing emergency command control communications computers intelligence surveillance and reconnaissance C4ISR capabilities and that the technology and architecture needed for homeland security C4ISR was compatible with that of the Army s Future Force This second report focuses on C4ISR and how it can facilitate the Army s efforts to assist the Department of Homeland Security DHS and emergency responders meet a catastrophic event CRIMINAL JUSTICE

TECHNOLOGY IN THE 21st CENTURY Laura J.
