Champlain's Island William Francis Ganong, New Brunswick Museum, 2003 In June 1604 Samuel de Champlain Pierre Du Gua de Monts and a small band of adventurers landed on a small island near the mouth of the St Croix River There they constructed buildings and deployed weapons establishing the first European settlement north of Florida and founding the French colony of Acadia During the unusually harsh winter that followed the explorers suffered months of hunger disease and great privation By spring almost half had perished the survivors abandoned Ste Croix Island and moved across the Bay of Fundy to Port Royal Even so the island s fortifications remained an important French foothold in Acadia

A Search for Sovereignty Lauren Benton, 2009-11-30 A Search for Sovereignty approaches world history by examining the relation of law and geography in European empires between 1400 and 1900 Lauren Benton argues that Europeans imagined imperial space as networks of corridors and enclaves and that they constructed sovereignty in ways that merged ideas about geography and law Conflicts over treason piracy convict transportation martial law and crime created irregular spaces of law while also attaching legal meanings to familiar geographic categories such as rivers oceans islands and mountains The resulting legal and spatial anomalies influenced debates about imperial constitutions and international law both in the colonies and at home This study changes our understanding of empire and its legacies and opens new perspectives on the global history of law
