1. Introduction

This is a book about young people—youth and emerging adults. The contributors in this volume investigate the religious and spiritual lives of young people, especially as they relate to inclinations to do good for others. People are increasingly interested in, concerned about, and excited for the generational changes occurring to faith and giving, as young people become adults. Emerging adulthood and the millennial generation receive considerable scholarly and public press attention. Prior generations wonder: What will happen to the future of faith and giving, and how can we help the new generation emerge into adult leaders? Younger generations wonder: How can we reshape the future of faith and giving, and how can existing religious and civic organizations respond to younger generations?

This edited volume is the result of a special issue that invited social scientific insights on responses to these questions. The background for this volume, summarized below, is the evolving life course developmental processes, as well as the culmination of numerous social and cultural changes in recent decades and their implications for socialization of religiosity, spirituality, and generosity. The included chapters focus on the faith and giving of youth and emerging adults, in the United States and internationally. The emphasis is on research that contributes breadth to social scientific understandings of religion, charitable giving, volunteering, generosity, youth, and emerging adults. We are especially interested in trends related to participation in religious and civic organizations, including changing cultural structures, beliefs, and orientations to faith and giving in less formal or non-organizational contexts.

2. Changing Trends

Scholars identify certain adulthood transitions as critical moments in the life course. The series of events when emerging adults negotiate their own experiences with those instilled by their upbringing begin to firmly set their adulthood patterns (e.g., (Tanner 2006)). For individuals, this emerging adulthood life stage is characterized by exuberant hope and optimism for personal futures (e.g., (Amett 2015)). However, a number of troubling social trends have developed in recent decades. Trends for the past 50 years indicate significant growth in relative income for those with the highest incomes, compared to stagnation across time for those with lowest incomes (Russell Sage Foundation 2012). Income earnings significantly associate with educational attainment (NCES 2015) and educational opportunities have become increasingly associated with family income levels, even net of standardized test scores (Putnam 2015). Particularly vulnerable are those who cannot invest in a college degree or the extended duration period often needed for successful adulthood launches (e.g., (Settersten and Ray 2010)).

Partially due to rising college enrollment, within-college differences are increasingly found to be important in predicting life course trajectories (Arum and Roksa 2014; Hamilton 2013; Hallsten 2010; Bosick 2007). At great risk are those ending with only some college, who can incur debt while

Changing Contexts Of Our Faith:

Grounding Our Faith in a Pluralist World John P. Keenan, Sydney Copp, Lansing Davis, Buster G. Smith, 2009-01-01
This book draws upon the Mahayana philosophy developed within Buddhism employing it as a means to empty our usual alternatives for viewing the world's many religions whether exclusivism, inclusivism or pluralism. The aim is to free people from clinging to intellectual positions enabling them gently but committedly to affirm their vernacular tradition as it is practiced on the ground. It critiques the above three options and introduces the Mahayana philosophy of emptiness and dependent arising along with its distinction between ultimate truth and conventional truth. It then applies this philosophy to an urgent question that bedevils modern people: how to practice one's chosen faith in the awareness of many other honored and attractive paths both elegant and efficacious. Changing Contexts of Our Faith Letty M. Russell, 1985 Behavioral Covenants in Congregations Gil Rendle, 1998-07-01
This down-to-earth workbook gets to the heart of modern congregational life: how to live creatively together despite differences of age, race, culture, opinion, gender, theological or political position. Alban Senior Consultant Gil Rendle explains how to grow by valuing our differences rather than trying to ignore or blend them. He describes a method of establishing behavioral covenants that includes leadership instruction, training tools, resources, visual models, examples of specific covenants, small group exercises, plans for meetings and retreats. Mission as Penance Charles J. Fensham, 2023-05-03
Mission as Penance explores the posture of Christian mission in Canada while also uncovering the theological roots that gave birth to the sense of cultural and religious superiority that led to profound harm to others and to God's creation. The story begins by an examination of Johan Bavinck's famous 1954 claim that mission is thus the penance of the church which is ashamed before God and man. By drawing on his work through forty years in theological education and pastoral ministry, Fensham prescribes a pathway that liberates the church from power games, numerical growth and preoccupation with programs and technology to focus instead on genuine listening, solidarity and love in action. True penance is never satisfied with passivity nor should it result in a state of paralysis. For a posture of humble penance to be fruitful, it must lead toward concerted action toward change, advocacy for justice, compassion for the marginalized and care for creation. If mission in Canada is engaged in this way, the Christian faith might cease to do harm and build a new life-giving community of healing. Faith and Ethics M. Ali Lakhani, 2017-12-22
Shi'i Ismaili Muslims are unique in following for centuries a living hereditary Imam, spiritual leader whom they believe to be directly descended from the Prophet Muhammad. The Imam's duty has been to guide his community on the basis of Islamic principles adapted to the needs of the time. In this insightful book, M. Ali Lakhani examines how the ideas and actions of the current Ismaili Imam and fourth Aga Khan, Prince Karim al-Husseini, provide an Islamic response to the challenges that face Muslims in the modern era. Prince Karim's programmes implemented mainly through the broad institutional framework of the Aga Khan Development Network are aimed at improving the quality of human life among the disadvantaged regardless of their religion or ethnicity. Addressing global issues ranging from healthcare and education to culture and civil society the Aga Khan's initiatives are founded on core Islamic principles and values This book is the first to provide an extensive survey of the Aga Khan's aspirations showing how the values of integrity and dignity are at the forefront of his work with the traditional Muslim concepts of cosmopolitanism and social justice guiding his response to the stark challenges of the modern age At a time when criticisms and misrepresentation surrounding Islam abound Faith and Ethics explores the religion's universal principles and values which the author holds to be central to the spiritual and ethical issues facing both Muslims and non Muslims in the rapidly changing modern world The book will be of special interest to scholars researching Islam Muslim faith and ethics and the Ismailis and to general readers wanting a deeper understanding of Islam
