Climate Change Epistemologies in Southern Africa Jörn Ahrens, Ernst Halbmayer, 2023-05-26 This book investigates the social and cultural dimensions of climate change in Southern Africa focusing on how knowledge about climate change is conceived and conveyed Despite contributing very little to the global production of emissions the African continent looks set to be the hardest hit by climate change Adopting a decolonial perspective this book argues that knowledge and discourse about climate change has largely disregarded African epistemologies leading to inequalities in knowledge systems Only by considering regionally specific forms of conceptualizing perceiving and responding to climate change can these global problems be tackled First exploring African epistemologies of climate change the book then goes on to the social impacts of climate change matters of climate justice and finally institutional change and adaptation Providing important insights into the social and cultural perception and communication of climate change in Africa this book will be of interest to researchers from across the fields of African studies sociology anthropology philosophy political science climate change and geography

To Change Reels Isabel Balseiro, Ntongela Masilela, 2003 With the end of apartheid South African cinema is at a turning point in its history This collection offers an exploration of a film industry that has excluded its country's black majority in both representation and production and which now must overcome collusion between racist ideology and film form Until recently filmmakers could work only within a culture that reluctantly took black South Africans into account Therefore to explore what South African cinema has been and could become the authors do not limit their discussion to film production but approach cinema as a manifestation of cultural history How has the purpose of cinema been viewed at different times in South Africa by different governments and social groups What is the relation between film and a sense of nationhood in South Africa Such questions lead to a consideration not only of films made by South Africans in South Africa but also of an unfolding film culture within a series of stages that have yet to give rise to a national cinema

South Africa, the Prospects of Peaceful Change Theodor Hanf, Heribert Weiland, Gerda Vierdag, 1981

South Africa Hein Marais, 2000

The unrealised expectations of the majority of South Africans are impacting upon the enormous ground swell of hope that was generated by this country's transition to democracy In this extensively updated and expanded edition Hein Marais provides an analysis of why the ANC government has adopted and firmly pursued conservative economic policies despite their poor performance In doing so he draws on and develops the rich structural and political understandings of radical South African intellectuals The book examines the reasons for poor economic performance and outlines an alternative economic path In a penetrating analysis of the balance of forces Marais examines the many and often overlooked ingredients of the ANC government's power as well as the frailties and unexploited strengths of the country's popular movement By critically surveying the history of resistance the strategies adopted by the apartheid state and its allies and by casting new light on post 1994 developments including the Truth and Reconciliation Commission experiment this book provides a benchmark critical analysis of South Africa's journey beyond apartheid
