Changing Woman:

Molded in the Image of Changing Woman Maureen Trudelle Schwarz, 1997-07 What might result from hearing a particular song wearing used clothing or witnessing an accident Ethnographic accounts of the Navajo refer repeatedly to the influences of events on health and well being yet until now no attempt has been made to clarify the Navajo system of rules governing association and effect This book focuses on the complex interweaving of the cosmological social and bodily realms that Navajo people navigate in an effort alternately to control contain or harness the power manifested in various effects Following the Navajo life course from conception to puberty Maureen Trudelle Schwarz explores the complex rules defining who or what can affect what or whom in specific circumstances as a means of determining what these effects tell us about the cultural construction of the human body and personhood for the Navajo Schwarz shows how oral history informs Navajo conceptions of the body and personhood showing how these conceptions are central to an ongoing Navajo identity She treats the vivid narratives of emergence life origins as compressed metaphorical accounts rather than as myth and is thus able to derive from what individual Navajos say about the past their understandings of personhood in a worldview that is actually a viable philosophical system Working with Navajo religious practitioners elders and professional scholars Schwarz has gained from her informants an unusually firm grasp of the Navajo highlighted by the foregrounding of Navajo voices through excerpts of interviews These passages enliven the book and present Schwarz and her Navajo consultants as real multifaceted human beings within the ethnographic context

Changing Woman Odette J. Springer, 2017 The Navajo deity Changing Woman is not well known in the pantheon of goddesses but she is everywhere She is Earth Feminine Creator spirit Feminine Spirit Holy Spirit breath voice the Wisdom Feminine of the Old Testament Ruach of Judaic thought The Shekinah of the Cabbalists Sophia of Gnosticism Moon Changing Woman 164 65 She represents equanimity and balance This dissertation approaches Changing Woman as an image through which my personal and archetypal transformation is explored The theoretical analysis of this study is a heuristic exploration of my personal interaction with myth depth psychology and the creative process. Primarily the work of C G Jung and James Hillman informs my point of view and depth psychological tools such as dreams, active imagination and journaling are employed as a way to decipher and amplify what Jung calls unconscious psychological complexes. While the practice of amplification is not primarily concerned with the meaning of images, Boznak 109, the meaning of these forms, their complexities and their contradictions remain fluid and are constantly changing. Under the tutelage and guidance of Changing Woman, this process of flux coalesces. The relevance of her myth, her meaning to my creative spirit and how she drew me to her is at the core of this study. This work further examines the difficulty of integrating opposite forces within the psyche. That dualism is seamlessly woven into the Navajo Emergence Myth, which ultimately metaphorizes our quest as Westerners to acknowledge our own dualities when they are not being defined by the culture. Considering that this myth provides those new old images, the dissertation concludes that we especially need these paradoxical images to move us beyond the duality of masculine and feminine. The production component of this work is a bricolage that consists of a collage, a musical composition, drawings and elements from the demolition/reconstruction of my house. The piece reflects my struggle to know Changing Woman, an epiphany of experience who helps me to understand that inspiration comes out of myth that they are mutually arising.
