Channel Catfish Culture:

Channel Catfish Culture Craig S. Tucker, 1985 The commercial culture of channel catfish in the south eastern part of the United States has grown at such an amazing rate in the last decade that more research efforts have been introduced to meet the need for additional technology Although some of this research has been summarized within particular disciplines there is no comprehensive treatise available that provides an overall summary of the current information available on the culture of this fish This book has been written to try and cater for this need However although researchers and commercial catfish producers will find much practical information in it it is not intended to be only a fish culture manual The material presented deals primarily with culture as practiced in the south eastern United States but the principles should apply wherever this species is cultured

Biology and Culture of Channel Catfish C.S. Tucker, J.A. Hargreaves, 2004-09-30 The history of channel catfish farming in the United States serves as a model for the development of pond based aquaculture industries worldwide Channel catfish farming is the largest and economically most important aquaculture industry in the United States In 2003 over 300 000 metric tons 662 million pounds of channel catfish were processed representing about half the total United States aquaculture production Demand for farm raised catfish is strong with record processing years in 2002 and 2003 In 22 chapters written by active scientists in the field Biology and Culture of Channel Catfish comprehensively synthesizes over 30 years of research on this American icon Throughout the book fundamental biological aspects of channel catfish are linked to practical culture techniques Topics include Latest information on reproductive physiology genetics and breeding Comprehensive treatment of catfish nutrition feeds and feeding practices Water quality management and pond dynamics In depth review of immunology in channel catfish Practical information on diseases and health management Techniques for commercial culture including innovative techniques such as raceways recirculating systems and partitioned aquaculture systems Catfish economics and marketing Exploration of environmental concerns including recommended Best Management Practices

Channel Catfish Farming Handbook Craig C. Tucker, Edwin H. Robinson, 1990-12-31

Channel Catfish Farming Handbook C. S. Tucker, 2013-11-11 Although catfish have been farmed for about 30 years and catfish farming is the most successful aquacultural enterprise in the United States there are those who contend that catfish farming is still as much of an art as it is a science This position is difficult to refute completely particularly considering that some practices used in catfish farming appear to have little scientific basis Skill coupled with a small dose of mysticism certainly plays a role in the culture of catfish and the catfish producer is faced with the unenviable task of rearing an animal in an environment that requires considerable management Certain aspects may still be an art because research and technical information needed to support the industry have lagged behind industry growth however the basic principles underlying catfish farming are based on sound scientific evidence whose foundation was laid in the 1950s by work conducted at state and federal fish hatcheries in the southeastern and midwestern United States Since that time several university and government laboratories have expanded the scientific base for catfish farming. As a result, considerable information is available, but it is generally fragmented and exists in a multitude of diverse scientific and trade journals. The material is often too technical or abstract to be comprehensible to fish culturists and personnel in allied industries. This book fits the definition of the term handbook in the sense that it is intended as a book of instruction or guidance as well as a reference.

Channel Catfish Culture in Midwestern Plastic-lined Ponds Len Michael Kring, 2005. In 2000, the Iowa Department of Natural Resources began using 10.04 ha and six 0.04 ha plastic lined ponds at the Rathbun Fish Hatchery and Research Facility, Moravia, Iowa, to culture game fish that are subsequently stocked into public waters. During the first 3 years of use, inconsistent growth and survival of channel catfish (Ictalurus punctatus) were evident. Two separate studies were composed to better understand the culture of channel catfish in these ponds. The effects of stocking density were investigated in the 0.04 ha production ponds. In 2003, stocking densities were 75,000 and 112,000 fish/ha. No significant differences were seen in catfish production, although fish in the lower treatment were slightly larger. The only significant difference with regard to water quality was that the ponds stocked with 112,000 fish/ha had higher concentrations of total phosphorus. In 2004, the same ponds were stocked at rates of 38,000 and 75,000 fish/ha. The fish in the lower treatment exhibited significantly higher specific growth and normalized biomass. These fish were also significantly longer and heavier at harvest. Ponds stocked at a rate of 75,000 fish/ha had significantly higher concentrations of ammonia, total phosphorus, and chlorophyll a. In 2004, the six 0.04 ha plastic lined ponds were used in conjunction with six 0.08 ha earthen ponds located at the Iowa State University Horticulture Station, Ames, Iowa, to assess the effects of dietary protein percent on the production of channel catfish. Plastic lined ponds that received the 28% protein feed exhibited significantly higher levels of total phosphorus and turbidity. Earthen ponds that received the 36% protein feed displayed significantly higher concentrations of ammonia and chlorophyll a. Fish fed the 36% protein diet in the plastic lined ponds had significantly higher relative weights (W_r) than fish fed the 28% protein diet. There was a significant difference in harvest lengths and weights in the earthen ponds with the fish fed the 36% protein feed being longer. A stocking density between 38,000 and 75,000 fish/ha should be used to culture channel catfish fingerlings in plastic lined ponds in Iowa with fish being fed a feed that contains over 28% protein.
