The Changing Contract Across Generations Vern L. Bengtson, 1993 Generational conflict has attracted considerable attention in the media and within academic circles during the past decade At the center of this collection of papers analyzing various facets of that conflict lie complex issues of generational equity issues that will remain important for the framing of public policy during the 1990s What do the young and the middle aged owe the elderly In discharging that debt to what extent are they able to provide for their own old age in a climate of changing notions of welfare What light do the longer perspectives of history shed on these issues What role do kinship gender and economic status play The papers commissioned by Bengtson and Achenbaum are intended to give greater analytic rigor to current debates The volume is interdisciplinary not only by theoretical intent but by the practical imperatives of gerontology More than a dozen sociologists economists historians demographers and policy analysts discuss the meanings and ambiguities that are inherent in terms such as generation equity compact contract and conflict in order to assess how relations between the age groups seem to vary from one sociohistorical context to the next This distinguished group of contributors raises comparative issues throughout assessing variations in generational ties by gender race class and geographic location Several project the extent to which recent changes in the political economy public philosophy and demographic structure of most modern societies presage greater conflicts or greater consensus in family members relationships and social ties

The Changing Contract across Generations Vern L. Bengtson, W. Andrew Achenbaum, 2024-11-01 Generational conflict has attracted considerable attention in the media and within academic circles during the past decade At the center of this collection of papers analyzing various facets of that conflict lie complex issues of generational equity issues that will remain important for the framing of public policy during the 1990s What do the young and the middle aged owe the elderly In discharging that debt to what extent are they able to provide for their own old age in a climate of changing notions of welfare What light do the longer perspectives of history shed on these issues What role do kinship gender and economic status play The papers commissioned by Bengtson and Achenbaum are intended to give greater analytic rigor to current debates The volume is interdisciplinary not only by theoretical intent but by the practical imperatives of gerontology More than a dozen sociologists economists historians demographers and policy analysts discuss the meanings and ambiguities that are inherent in terms such as generation equity compact contract and conflict in order to assess how relations between the age groups seem to vary from one sociohistorical context to the next This distinguished group of contributors raises comparative issues throughout assessing variations in generational ties by gender race class and geographic location Several project the extent to which recent changes in the political economy public philosophy and demographic structure of most modern societies presage greater conflicts or greater consensus in family members relationships and social ties

Changing Contract Across Generations Vern L. Bengtson, W. Andrew Achenbaum, 1993 Aging, Social Inequality, and Public Policy Fred C. Pampel, 1998-02-25 Author Fred

C. Pongmehl treats age as a component of social inequality which gives rise to the three major themes of the text: diversity in the experience of individuals, differences in public policy, and variations across nations. Comparison of the United States with other nations is a central component of the book, providing a greater understanding of the larger forces that shape old age.

Kinship and Cohort in an Aging Society Merrill Silverstein, Roseann Giarrusso, 2013-09 According to family sociologist Vern Bengtson, generations within families are important sources of influence, change, and development. Kinship and Cohort in an Aging Society brings together scholars whose common link is their intellectual intersection with the work of Vern Bengtson, an esteemed family sociologist whose accomplishments include foundational theoretical contributions to the study of families and intergenerational relations, as well as the development of the widely used Longitudinal Study of Generations data set. The study began in 1971 and is the basis for Bengtson's highly influential concept and measurement model, the intergenerational solidarity conflict paradigm. This book serves as an excellent compendium of original research that examines how Bengtson's solidarity model, a theory that informs nearly all intergenerational and gerontology sociology work performed today, continues to be relevant to scholars and practitioners. Written by internationally recognized scholars, the book's fifteen chapters are mapped to five major thematic areas to which Bengtson's research contributed: family connections, grandparents in a changing demographic landscape, generations and cohorts, micro-macro dialectics, religion, and families in the context of continuity, change, and conflict, and global, cross-national, and cross-ethnic concerns. Key strengths of the book include the diversity of foci and data sources and the strong attention given to global and international issues. Kinship and Cohort in an Aging Society will appeal to scholars working in sociology, psychology, gerontology, family studies, and social work.

The Gerontological Prism: Developing Interdisciplinary Bridges Jeffrey Michael Clair, Richard Allman, 2018-10-26 The Gerontological Prism promotes disciplinary cooperation in aging research and practice. To some extent, each chapter explores a unified objective: that of generating a disciplinary blind gerontology. The fundamental assumption throughout this book is that the aging individual and society can be enhanced by an understanding of the correlates of basic social, behavioral, demographic, economic, political, ethical, and biomedical processes involving aging. Each author touches on issues that have both social, psychological, and practical policy significance. They aim toward sensitizing the reader to the possibilities of a properly informed interdisciplinary approach to gerontology.

Religions in Asian America Pyong Gap Min, Jung Ha Kim, 2001-12-18 The flux of Asian immigration over the last 35 years has deeply altered the United States religious landscape. But neither social scientists nor religious scholars have fully appreciated the impact of these growing communities. And Asian immigrant religious communities are significant to the study of American religion, not only because there are more than ten million Asian Americans. Asian American religions differ substantially from models drawn from European religions, pushing for new, wider understandings. Religions in Asian America provides a comprehensive overview of the religious practices of Chinese, Filipino, Indian, Korean, Japanese, Vietnamese, Cambodian, and Laotian Americans.

How these new communities work through issues of gender race transnationalism income disparities and social service and the passing along an ethnic identity to the next generation make up the common themes that reach across essays about the varying communities The first sociological overview of Asian American religions Religions in Asian America is necessary reading for those interested in Asians ethnicity immigration or religion in the United States The Cinematic Enfant Terrible Karolina Westling, 2025-06-26 The Cinematic Enfant Terrible is a groundbreaking study of rule breakers in French cinema The book approaches the concept of the enfant terrible in the literal sense of the term young people labelled terrible awful by the adult generation It explores a rich cinematic tradition from Jean Vigo's Zéro de conduite 1933 and François Truffaut's Les quatre cents coups 1959 to Catherine Breillat's 36 fillette 1988 and Ladj Ly's Les Misérables 2019 The book encompasses the cinematic enfants terribles across age groups and genders addressing the differences between unruly boys and rebellious teenage girls The early post war focus on juvenile delinquency and sexual provocations diversifies into filles fatales and angry girls but also precarious boys and parents terribles The book charts the evolution of the enfant terrible concept from a negative label to a sympathetically viewed figure of anti authoritarian resistance reflecting the changing position of children within the family in post war France The films address the ethical paradox of democratic upbringing the dilemma of raising children to become obedient individuals with a mind of their own The asymmetrical relationship between children and parents is seen as a tacit family contract that highlights the importance of an intergenerational perspective for the understanding of generational conflicts Rebellious children and teenagers on screen are seen in the light of wider social transformations The book clarifies the interplay between individual protests and cultural currents such as existentialism feminism and ethnic conflicts This book will be of interest to scholars and students of French culture and cinema childhood and youth studies gender studies and cultural studies

Parent-child Exchanges of Supports and Intergenerational Equity Leroy O. Stone, Ingrid Arnet Connidis, Carolyn J. Rosenthal, Statistics Canada. Family and Community Supports Division, 1998 What are the consequences of including private exchanges of supports when evaluating whether there is intergenerational equity in Canada This general question is the focus of the analysis which presents related information concerning the exchange of supports between parents and their children Using the data from the General Social Survey the book addresses questions related to the general one cited above When we study intra familial exchanges of supports how strong are the indications that parents and children adhere to definitions of inter generational equity that are the same as or consistent with the dominant ones found in the major debates When we study intra familial exchanges of supports how strong are the indications that children give more to their parents than they receive due to government income transfer programs To what extent does the composition of the determinants of flows of inter generational supports change when private intra familial exchanges are brought into the scope of measurement of such flows and what do the potential degrees of compositional shift portend for the assessment of what a given generation provides to others in terms of supports and hence what it is owed in return for that provision To what extent do the grounds of the debates concerning inter generational equity need to be shifted once one takes into account private intra familial exchanges of supports      USC Economics-Arthur Andersen Working Paper Series ,1992      Korea Journal of Population and Development ,1995      The International Journal of Aging & Human Development ,2005      Aging as a Social Process Barry D.
