ABSTRACT

This study explores how the political interests of different ethnic groups influence mainstream television's news discourses in Ethiopia. It was based on data generated from a corpus of 1167 news stories in three TV channels from 2019 to 2021 and analyzed stories threatening multiculturalism. Based on the theoretical lenses of critical theory, it employed a Discourse Historical Approach to analyze discursive strategies used in TV news. It underscores that in a diverse society like Ethiopia, achieving public consensus through news discourse might become tougher. The results also show that recent political polarization, conflicts, and civil wars have potentially compromised the objectivity of news reporting, undermining the utilization of inclusive language for representing diversity. Newsrooms employ antagonistic narratives that impede the cultivation of tolerance and respect among diverse ethnic and political factions. Consequently, these narratives cunningly neutralize the political undertones of ethnic conflicts by labeling the culprits as terrorists. Hostile mode of discourse perilous to the enactment of multiculturalism characterizes the news discourses in TV channels. While discussing political conflicts and insecurities, the news stories intensify divisions among diverse political groups. Therefore, the study suggests that news reporting in a diverse society ought to focus on peace bargaining, the use of impartial and inoffensive discourses to lay the groundwork for multicultural integration.

1. Introduction

This study examines how the political interests of different ethnic groups influence mainstream TV discourses in Ethiopia. Given the political disparities among various ethnic groups, divisive media discourse has the potential to undermine rather than promoting multiculturalism. The adoption of ethnic federalism in Ethiopia in 1991 has had substantial consequences, leading to ongoing political challenges in the country and posing difficulties in effectively managing ethnic diversity since the 1990s [1]. Furthermore, the country is currently experiencing armed conflict in the northern region [2] which may have influenced the ways in which news media portray multicultural societies. As a result, news stories in Ethiopia, perhaps unconsciously, tend to be framed with anti-multiculturalist sentiments due to the presence of diverse societies with conflicting interests. This phenomenon may have resulted in the utilization of polarizing and unsolicited linguistic expressions, which, in turn, could have escalated into ethnic tensions.

These anti-multiculturalist sentiments can arise unintentionally or even deliberately. It is crucial for news reporters to be aware of

Channels Of Discourse:

Channels of Discourse, Reassembled Robert C. Allen, 2005-10-25 Channels of Discourse fills a significant gap in the critical literature on television. The eight distinguished scholars whose essays make up the collection consider commercial television in relation to the major strands of contemporary literary, cultural, and cinematic criticism. Channels of Discourse Robert Allen, 1992. Review Article James Donald, 1990. Media Discourse in Contemporary India Sudeshna Devi, 2022-06-24. This book examines the historical trajectory of the growth of the television news and critically analyzes the role of private television news in framing the nature of public discourse in contemporary India. Set in the context of a transformed media landscape, the book attempts to understand and analyze the role of two private national news channels, NDTV 24/7 and Aaj Tak, in producing mediatized narratives that offer a commentary on the various social, political, cultural, religious, and economic issues in the public domain. This is achieved by critically examining the process and techniques of production, representation, and consumption of current affairs programs such as studio debates, panel discussions, audience talk shows, and documentaries aired on both the channels. Highlighting some of the key trends that impinge on the structure and mode of operation of television news media in contemporary India, the book offers a simultaneous examination of how the production, representation, and consumption of the mediatized discourses shape the nature of public discourse and have social, political ramifications for the functioning of Indian democracy. The book will be of interest to researchers in sociology, media, and communication studies, popular culture, and South Asian Studies. Revisiting the Toolbox of Discourse Studies Markus Rheindorf, 2019-06-07. This book revisits discourse analytic practice, analyzing the idea that the field has access to, provides, or even constitutes a toolbox of methods. The precise characteristics of this toolbox have remained largely untheorized, and the author discusses the different sets of tools and their combinations, particularly those that cut across traditional divides such as those between disciplines or between quantitative and qualitative methods. The author emphasizes the potential value of integrating methods in terms of triangulation and its specific benefits, arguing that current trends in Open Science require Discourse Studies to re-examine its methodological scope and choices and move beyond token acknowledgements of eclecticism. In-depth case studies supplement the methodological discussion and demonstrate the challenges and benefits of triangulation. This book will be a valuable resource for students and scholars in Discourse Studies, particularly those with an interest in combining methods and working across disciplines.
