Economic Integration and Third World Development Pradip K. Ghosh,1984-10-24 Although not previously well documented many instances of regional economic integration occur among Third World countries Joint industrial planning monetary integration trade expansion and investment planning are among the many facets of economic integration discussed in this volume Integration schemes most likely to contribute to development are difficult to achieve because ultimate success depends on the willingness and ability of the nations involved to negotiate conditions that contribute to the development of the region as a whole and that assure an acceptable distribution of benefits within the region The variety of theories and practical examples of regional integration plans detailed here document the complexity of integrated planning and the difficulties in achieving the desired results This work defines and explores the many factors necessary for understanding the difficulties involved in economic integration and cooperation among developing countries Communication, Development, and the Third World Robert L. Stevenson,1988

The first book to address two of the foremost issues in international communication the UNESCO debate over the New World of Information Order NWIO which attempted to reach a global consensus on the purpose of journalism and secondly the place of mass media and telecommunication in the development of third world countries It traces the growth of these issues from their beginnings in the sixties through the UNESCO declaration on mass media in 1978 into the present decade Key features of this text are the examination of the role communication plays in countries with differing systems of government and an explanation of the issues that brought UNESCO into the limelight in the eighties and its importance to the future Originally published in 1988 by Longman Third World Development Edward G.
