South-South Globalization S. Mansoob Murshed, Pedro Goulart, Leandro Serino, 2011-06-16 Two prominent features of the current global economy are the world wide recession brought about by the recent financial crisis and the emergence of major economic powers from within the developing world such as Brazil China and India The former represents the failure of global regulatory policies and macroeconomic imbalances between surplus and deficit countries the latter is symptomatic of a partial shift in economic power towards developing nations who are often collectively labelled the global South The macroeconomic imbalances are unsustainable in the longer run as they mean greater absorption relative to income in deficit nations they require corrective action and international policy coordination Reducing imbalances also requires large developing countries to raise their domestic consumption and also imports from the rest of the world and international financial institutions to operate as a lender of last resort Furthermore the engines of global growth especially for developing countries may no longer lie solely in the traditional developed country markets in the USA Europe and Japan known collectively as the global North Rather South South trade is growing rapidly and that could be an engine of growth for the global economy including both developed and developing countries The various chapters in this edited volume address issues surrounding global imbalances and the prospects for growth in developing countries propelled by South South interaction This book should be of interest to students and researchers focussing on political economics international economics globalization global imbalance and the world wide recession after 2008

The Impact of

Globalization on Infectious Disease Emergence and Control Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Forum on Microbial Threats, 2006-03-01 Globalization is by no means a new phenomenon transcontinental trade and the movement of people date back at least 2 000 years to the era of the ancient Silk Road trade route The global spread of infectious disease has followed a parallel course Indeed the emergence and spread of infectious disease are in a sense the epitome of globalization Although some experts mark the fall of the Berlin Wall as the beginning of this new era of globalization others argue that it is not so new The future of globalization is still in the making Despite the successful attempts of the developed world during the course of the last century to control many infectious diseases and even to eradicate some deadly afflictions 13 million people worldwide still die from such diseases every year On April 16 and 17 2002 the Forum on Emerging Infections held a working group discussion on the influence of globalization on the emergence and control of infectious diseases The contents of the unattributed sections are based on the presentations and discussions that took place during the workshop The Impact of Globalization on Infectious Disease Emergence and Control report summarizes the presentations and discussions related to the increasing cross border and cross continental movements of people and how this could exacerbate the emergence and global spread of infectious diseases This report also summarizes the means by which sovereign states and nations must adopt a global public health mind set and develop a new organizational framework to maximize the opportunities and overcome the challenges created by globalization and build the necessary capacity to respond effectively to emerging infectious disease threats
