Improvement - A Global Assessment for Sustainable Development Ephraim Nkonya,Alisher Mirzabaev,Joachim von Braun,2015-11-11 This volume deals with land degradation which is occurring in almost all terrestrial biomes and agro ecologies in both low and high income countries and is stretching to about 30% of the total global land area About three billion people reside in these degraded lands However the impact of land degradation is especially severe on livelihoods of the poor who heavily depend on natural resources The annual global cost of land degradation due to land use and cover change LUCC and lower cropland and rangeland productivity is estimated to be about 300 billion USD Sub Saharan Africa SSA accounts for the largest share 22% of the total global cost of land degradation Only about 38% of the cost of land degradation due to LUCC which accounts for 78% of the US 300 billion loss is borne by land users and the remaining share 62% is borne by consumers of ecosystem services off the farm The results in this volume indicate that reversing land degradation trends makes both economic sense and has multiple social and environmental benefits On average one US dollar investment into restoration of degraded land returns five US dollars The findings of the country case studies call for increased investments into the rehabilitation and restoration of degraded lands including through such institutional and policy measures as strengthening community participation for sustainable land management enhancing government effectiveness and rule of law improving access to markets and rural services and securing land tenure The assessment in this volume has been conducted at a time when there is an elevated interest in private land investments and when global efforts to achieve sustainable development objectives have intensified In this regard the results of this volume can contribute significantly to the ongoing policy debate and efforts to design strategies for achieving sustainable development goals and related efforts to address land degradation and halt biodiversity loss Michigan Reports Michigan. Stoke,1994 Observational surveys of child safety seat use were conducted at the request of the Transportation Safety Administration of the Department of Motor Vehicles The present survey was conducted in the four areas of the state with the largest populations The data were categorized as correct use incorrect use and no use for each seat position in the car for children judged by the survey team to require safety seats under state law Correct child seat use was higher 51 6% in the rear seats of cars than in the front seats 40 8% For the entire car only 48 9% of the children were in a correctly used child seat 33 6% of the child occupants were not in a safety seat and 17 5% of the seats were obviously misused The data also showed variations in the pattern of use among the four areas of the state The rate of incorrect use was probably underestimated by this survey There is a need to address the problems of non use and incorrect use through increased education and enforcement efforts on the part of the state and localities
