African Families at the Turn of the 21st Century Baffour K. Takyi, Yaw Oheneba-Sakyi, 2006-03-30 The institution of family has been central to the well being of African societies over the years African families have undergone significant transformation caused by the interplay of indigenous Arabic Islamic and European Christian cultures The juxtaposition of these three cultures in the lives of African peoples captures the triple heritage image of the continent At the same time modernization urbanization and migration have played and continue to play significant roles in the transformation of families across the continent While it is true that the traditional family has changed in many ways and that African families are continuously confronted with new challenges the renowned contributors to this volume recognize that the African family continues to adapt to emerging structural changes In the new millennium a host of issues and challenges has emerged each with the potential to weaken or threaten the survival of the traditional African family These include the HIV AIDS pandemic a growing elderly population declining governmental support and economic decay How the post colonial family reacts to these threats and challenges has the potential to either maintain or undermine the family's role as a major organizing principle in Africa The institution of family has been central to the well being of African societies over the years African families have undergone significant transformations caused by the interplay of indigenous Arabic Islamic and European Christian cultures The juxtaposition of these three cultures in the lives of African peoples captures the triple heritage image of the continent At the same time modernization urbanization and migration have played and continue to play a role in the transformation of families across the continent While it is true that the traditional family has changed in many ways and that African families are continuously confronted with new challenges the contributors to this volume recognize that the African family has adapted to the emerging structural changes In the new millennium a host of issues and challenges have the potential to weaken or threaten the survival of the traditional African family These include the HIV AIDS pandemic which seems to afflict the young and able bodied a growing elderly population declining governmental support and economic decay How the post colonial family reacts to these threats and challenges has the potential to either maintain or undermine the family's role as a major organizing principle in Africa Profound transitions have occurred in family structure and processes since the post colonial period This work points to some of the documented transformations in African family life including the changing modes of decision making due to the establishment of a cash crop economy nuptial patterns changing maternal roles an increasing age at marriage and declining fertility a growing number of households headed by women an increase in the rate of marital instability and dissolution and changing patterns of mate selection and family relations

Mother-headed Families and Why They Have Increased Ailsa Burns, Cath Scott, Catherine Scott, 2013-06-17 The last two decades have seen a dramatic growth in the proportion of families headed by women Most of these families are poor and include dependent children causing the development of a large underprivileged class across the western world This book explores the causes and implications of this development Because the increase in mother headed families is an international trend an international perspective has been adopted The discussion centers on selected countries where certain trends are most visible Among the western nations particular attention is given to the United States Sweden and the former U S S R because of their high prevalence of mother headed families and trends in some countries with a middling prevalence are also discussed Japan is included because of its combination of advanced industrialization with a non western tradition and a low incidence of mother headed families Accordingly the book considers broad supranational influences and proposes some explanations that draw on material from history anthropology sociology psychology women s studies economics literature and religious studies The authors present definitive information on the incidence of mother headed families across historical epochs and culture groups This includes an exploration of the conditions under which such families have been many or few and have been treated well or poorly by their communities They also offer some theoretical explanations for the increasing frequency of this family form and consider whether these interpretations fit the facts that have been gathered Finally there is a detailed discussion revealing what these explanations may imply for the future that is whether the number of mother headed families is likely to increase stabilize or decrease

Social Protection for Africa's Children Sudhanshu Handa, Stephen Devereux, Douglas Webb, 2010-10-04 Social protection is an increasingly important part of the social policy dialogue in Africa and yet because of its relatively new place in a rapidly evolving agenda evidence on critical design choices such as targeting and on impacts of social protection interventions is mostly limited to case studies or small unrepresentative surveys This impressive collection makes a major contribution to building the evidence base drawing on rigorous analysis of social protection programmes in several African countries as well as original research and thinking on key topical issues in the social protection discourse Social Protection for Africa s Children is divided into four parts The first presents economic and human rights based right arguments for social protection as an integral part of the social policy menu in Africa This is followed by a part on targeting which highlights some of the key policy trade offs faced when deciding between alternative target groups The third part presents rigorous quantitative evidence on the impact of social cash transfers on children from programmes in South Africa Malawi and Ethiopia and the final part addresses a set of issues related to social justice and human rights This book significantly advances existing knowledge about social protection for children in Africa both conceptually and empirically It makes a strong case for social protection interventions that address the short term amelioration and long term structural needs of children and shows that programming in this sector for children is both feasible and achievable Policy makers and practitioners in this sector will have in this book the theoretical and empirical evidence necessary to advance social protection for Africa s children in the decades to come Furthermore this book should be an essential resource to postgraduates and students focussing on development economics in Africa

African Families and the Crisis of Social Change Thomas S. Weisner, Candice Bradley, Philip L. Kilbride, 1997-05-30 African families face serious crises today They are under economic demographic and political pressures of all kinds yet families are not mere hapless victims of global change They are proactive resilient agents and creators of change This volume studies global and national transformation from the point of view of families in local communities Contributors are from Africa North America and Europe and provide socially and historically based culturally rich multigenerational and comparative perspectives on family life in Africa today The essays explore contemporary change in African families and consequences for children and parents the elderly gender roles moral values fertility health HIV and nutrition and economic development Ultimately despite desperate economic sociohistorical demographic and political circumstances African families remain vitally important for social and psychological support throughout an individual s life span

Reconceptualizing Children's Rights in International Development Karl Hanson, Olga Nieuwenhuys, 2012-11-29 Building on recent human rights scholarship childhood studies and child rights programming this conceptual framework on children s rights proposes three key notions living rights or the lived experiences in which rights take shape social justice or the shared normative beliefs that make rights appear legitimate for those who struggle to get them recognised and translations or the complex flux between different beliefs and perspectives on rights and their codification By exploring the relationships between these three concepts the realities and complexities of children s rights are highlighted The framework is critical of approaches to children as passive targets of good intentions and aims to disclose how children craft their own conceptions and practices of rights The contributions offer important insights into new ways of thinking and research within this emerging field

Family Violence From a Global Perspective Sylvia M. Asay, John DeFrain, Marcee Metzger, Bob Moyer, 2013-06-17 Focusing on family violence worldwide Family Violence From a Global Perspective A Strengths Based Approach draws on the expertise of authors from 16 countries representing 17 cultures to tell the story of domestic violence in their respective parts of the world This one of a kind edited collection by Sylvia M Asay John DeFrain Marcee Metzger and Bob Moyer incorporates a strengths based approach including individual relationship community and societal strengths The collection draws on multiple perspectives academics counselors organizers activists and victims to determine strengths and analyze how they can translate into greater safety for victims increased accountability of perpetrators and improved policy formation and research Each chapter focuses on the lived experiences of victims of intimate partner violence child abuse or elder abuse and includes information about the abuser the family the community and the culture Family, Population and Development in Africa Aderanti Adepoju,1997 This book investigates the challenges facing the African family and their multiple effects from an extremely broad perspective The contributors explore the nature of available data on which current policies are premised marriage patterns the role of the family in agriculture the changing roles and status of women the transformations generated by mass migration the strains and tensions wrought by structural adjustment programmes and the functioning of family law Throughout the book makes clear the importance of the family to the development process The contributors call on development strategists to see the family as a dynamic source of change as much as the recipient of it as such this book is essential reading for students academics and activists in development studies Transafrican Journal of History ,1994
