The Managerial Imperative Dalton E. McFarland, 1986 A new imperative Chris Duke, Michael Osborne, Bruce Wilson, 2016-05-16 At a time in history when global challenges are becoming more intractable and threatening it makes sense to draw on the specialist expertise of our universities Much of government interest in doing so has typically focused on the major research institutions with their records of new discovery and invention However there is extensive evidence that the greatest opportunities are at regional level Despite globalisation regions are becoming more and more important as sites of identity and policy intervention Regions can take their futures into their own hands and their local universities are a crucial resource of expertise to support these initiatives However there have been significant barriers to effective cooperation between universities and their regional authorities This book provides an analysis of these circumstances and draws on an international research project to point academics policy makers and practitioners in the right direction It provides extensive evidence from this project to support its argument

The Data Imperative Henri Schildt, 2020 Companies across all industries are engaging in digital transformation Henri Schildt provides an in depth look at how data and algorithms are reshaping management practices organizational structures corporate culture and work roles and presents the data imperative as a framework for understanding digitalization as a new normative mind set have not yet arrived in the new millennium They are trying to set precedents in this century for strategic options and solutions by force and military might that pertain to past millennia The crossing of the threshold to the new millennium was a historical occasion for progressing into a new era of global conflict resolution that has been ignored so far Enforcing negotiated solutions sounds like a contradiction in term due to its implication of using force in order to bring about negotiated solutions in the Middle East and elsewhere in the world Yet the use of force should be understood here as the use of a previous strategic concept for conflict resolution intended to bring about future oriented sustainable strategies in the shape of negotiated conflict resolution In other words diplomatic economic and political strategies can be supported by coercive forms of specific military strategy in order to force conflict partners to force themselves to adopt the negotiated conflict resolution strategy at the exclusion of violent military conflict resolution strategies In other words a change of millennia old patterns of conflict resolution strategies must be brought about if necessary by coercive means of all forms shapes and kinds that are below the level of hot armed conflict And there are quasi no limits to human intelligence as far as alternative ways and means of conflict resolution are concerned that differ from the old habits and patterns

Responsiveness and Its Institutionalisation in Higher Education François Van Schalkwyk, 2012-03 Master s Thesis from the year 2010 in the subject Pedagogy Higher Education grade 70 language English abstract This thesis proposes a typology of responsiveness in order to reduce interpretive ambiguity and to provide a framework which makes possible an assessment of the extent to which responsiveness is likely to be institutionalised in higher education The typology is tested at two universities The findings indicate that the typology developed can be deployed to reveal insight into how responsiveness is manifesting at universities The findings around institutionalisation of responsiveness are less conclusive but indicate that while there is evidence of the institutionalisation of a particular type of university responsiveness the process is at best partial as the academic heartland of higher education systems remain slow to accept the demands made by the state university leadership and other stakeholders for more responsive universities Navigating Change Donald C. Hambrick, David Nadler, Michael Tushman, 1998 A collection of insights and ideas on senior leadership from the world s foremost thinkers on change management The book features suggestions on how to bring about change effectively and offers advice from leading practioners Current Index to Journals in Education , 1995 Report of the Board of Managers of the New York State Reformatory , 1900 Changing Managerial Imperatives ERIC Clearinghouse for Community Colleges, Los Angeles, CA., 1993 Intended as a forum for the discussion of governance and management in community colleges this book details current trends in management approaches at the institutions provides a practical description of management roles and responsibilities for college faculty and staff and examines critical issues facing leaders engaged in management transformation The following nine chapters are included 1 Rethinking the Business of Management by Richard L Alfred and Patricia Carter 2 Adapting Institutional Structure and Culture to Change by Robert E Parilla 3 From Boxing to
