of nuclear science The major source of these continues to derive from the global fallout of atmospheric tests of nuclear weapons in the 1950s and 1960s but also includes both planned and accidental releases of radioactivity from both civilian and military nuclear technology The other division of the major study direction depends on whether the objective is to use the radionuclides as powerful tools to study oceanic processes to describe and understand the ocean distribution of the various natural or artificial radionuclides or to assess the different radionuclides impact on and pathways to man or marine organisms The oceans cover 70% of the Earth s surface and thus contains a corresponding large share of the Earth s radioactivity Marine Radioactivity covers topics of recent scientific study in this young field It examines both natural radioactivity radioactivity naturally present in oceans since their formation and artificial radioactivity radioactivity introduced by man and use of atomic and nuclear energy with regard to possible effects on the global environment
