Winter in July Janet Crane Barley, 1995-05-09 Leading New Zealand and Australian children's authors not only tell the stories behind their books and share some of their writing secrets they describe trends that influence what is being published now. Until the past decade or so children in Australia and New Zealand grew up reading mostly books from Britain or the United States. Several of the authors explain why so few children's books were published in Australia and New Zealand before the 1980s and why children's book publishing is now a flourishing industry there. Each chapter features an informal presentation given to a group of American librarians, teachers, readers, and writers during a story tour of New Zealand and Australia. The reader will meet New Zealand authors Dorothy Butler, Tessa Duder, Gavin Bishop, and Margaret Mahy, and Australian authors Jeannie Baker, Robin Klein, Peter Gouldthorpe, John Marsden, and Ivan Southall. Overviews by Betty Gilderdale, professor of children's literature in New Zealand, and Mark MacLeod, children's publishing director for Random House Australia, set the stage for chapters about the authors.

A Bibliography of the Literature Relating to New Zealand Thomas Morland Hocken, 1909 New Zealand Farmer Weekly, 1929 The Dictionary of New Zealand English H. W. Orsman, 1997 The Dictionary of New Zealand English provides a unique historical record of New Zealand words and phrases from their earliest use to the present day. The 6,000 main headword entries and 9,300 separate sub-entries provide fascinating insights into New Zealand's diverse linguistic heritage. The definitions are illustrated by 47,000 select quotations arranged in chronological order from the earliest to the latest. The origin of each headword is discussed. The Dictionary of New Zealand English is an essential reference for those interested in New Zealand society, history, and culture and makes an invaluable contribution to the study of the English language worldwide.
