New Research Centers, 2001 The Episcopal Church Annual, 2003 Clothing and Footwear in African Industrialisation

Dorothy McCormick, Christian Myles Rogerson, 2004

There is a broad consensus amongst development specialists that in order to grow and develop, African countries need to industrialise and at a greater rate than they are doing at present. In searching for the reasons for the disappointing industrial progress so far, observers have tended to take a broad look at the industrial sector as a whole. The work reported in this volume takes a different approach. It sets out from the premise that two industries, clothing and footwear, offer excellent starter opportunities for baseline industrial growth. Garments and footwear are low-tech industries in so far that they use stable, well-diffused technology. They generate only low-level research and development needs, require only basic skills, and operate on low economies of scale whilst having the capacity to absorb large numbers of semi-skilled workers and make extensive use of local resources. Additionally, they offer considerable export potential. This collection of papers focuses on the changing role and potential of the clothing and footwear sectors in industrialisation in Africa. The examples elucidated are the clothing and footwear sectors in Ethiopia, Kenya, South Africa, and Tanzania. Taken together, these four countries provide a representative cross-section of African countries and present a range of different issues relating to the continent's clothing and footwear economy. More generally, the volume seeks to contribute to a greater appreciation of the impacts of globalisation on industrial development trajectories The Nature of the Conflict in Sudan Donovan Du Plooy,2005 America's Trade Adventure in Africa Margaret Carol Lee,2004 Benn's Media,2006 Australian Men and Women of Science, Engineering and Technology Australian Academy of Science,1995
