Natural Science Education, Indigenous Knowledge, and Sustainable Development in Rural and Urban Schools in Kenya Darren M. O'Hern, Yoshiko Nozaki, 2014-05-05 Through a multi-sited qualitative study of three Kenyan secondary schools in rural Taita Hills and urban Nairobi, the volume explores the ways the dichotomy between Western and indigenous knowledge operates in Kenyan education. In particular, it examines views on natural sciences expressed by the students, teachers, the state's curricula documents, and schools' exam-oriented pedagogical approaches. O'Hern and Nozaki question state and local education policies and practices as they relate to natural science subjects such as agriculture, biology, and geography, and their dismissal of indigenous knowledge about environment, nature, and sustainable development. They suggest the need to develop critical postcolonial curriculum policies and practices of science education to overcome knowledge-oriented binaries, emphasize sustainable development, and address the problems of inequality, the center and periphery divide, and social, cultural, and environmental injustices in Kenya and by implication elsewhere. In an era of environmental crisis and devastation, education that supports sustainability and survival of our planet is needed. Within a broader sociopolitical context of postcolonialism and globalization, this volume points out possibilities and challenges to achieve such an education. The authors propose a critical postcolonial approach that acknowledges the contextual and situational production of all knowledge and that de-dichotomizes indigenous from Western scientific knowledge.

Eric Rico Gutstein, Professor, Curriculum and Instruction, University of Illinois at Chicago, USA. Mapping the Academic Debate Johannes Duschka, Christoph Kleine, Monika Wohlrab-Sahr, Florian Zemmin, 2024-12-16 This volume maps the international academic debate on secularity. It places seminal contributions from within Western academia alongside less well-known texts from various parts of the world. In several cases, this is the first time that they have been translated into English. The volume demonstrates that the academic debate on secularity was and is a global debate with contributions from many regions. The collected texts relate to each other either directly or indirectly by referring to similar arguments, whether reinforcing or criticising them, and thus create a discourse. When speaking of global secularity, we therefore do not insinuate a uniform world secularity resulting from the alleged global diffusion of Western norms, ideas, and concepts. It is rather a web of relations that is constituted via various different references These references are not evenly distributed the development in the West is often the point of reference to which positions from other regions relate to which they connect or from which they distance themselves But the references are not completely unidirectional We also present texts from Europe that underline the multidirectionality of the process even early on Thereby the volume offers the reader the material with which to trace these global exchanges and references

Ivory Basement Leadership Joan Eveline, 2004 Many people fear that the ivory tower is crumbling Of urgent concern are deteriorating standards fewer jobs waning professional prestige and new layers of inequity Leadership in the tower is easy to spot It is hierarchical detached and mostly male In this highly readable book Joan Eveline turns her acute gaze to the ivory basement where the corridors departments laboratories and offices are peopled There she observes a greedy organization cannibalizing the efforts energy and care of the basement s workers most of whom are women Voices from the basement of the University of Western Australia but it could be any university speak about the devaluing of their work Eveline detects a new linkage through shared experience of administrative staff research assistants and the lower order of academics who increasingly are casual workers And she discerns a courageous and almost invisible exercise of leadership This post heroic leadership values personal relationship loyalty and diversity It is creative flexible and above all collaborative This book will hearten those dismayed by the restructuring pandemic For ivory basement workers have in adversity forged a leadership model that might well be mobilized to revive Australia s ailing universities

The Human Dimension of Shale Gas Developments in Lancashire, UK Anna Szolucha, 2016-09-01 A thorough understanding of social and psychological factors as well as public understanding of risk is central to taking informed decisions about shale gas exploration and extraction in Lancashire and the UK On the basis of existing evidence and the research conducted for this report it is evident that the failure to consider these aspects of shale gas development significantly understates its actual and potential impacts which may alter the planning balance in favour of development From a social point of view assessing shale gas exploration and extraction as a low impact activity is unsupported by evidence A social impact assessment should be fundamental in all political and local decision making about shale gas development that prioritises public health and social well being

Development Professionals in Northern Thailand Katharine Islay McKinnon,2011 Development promises higher incomes better livelihoods social justice and emancipation but decades of good intentions have left hill communities in Northern Thailand with high rates of drug addiction and poverty and a loss of traditional knowledge and values A former volunteer and development specialist who spent much of her childhood in the region Katharine McKinnon set out to consider what has gone wrong by studying professionals involved in development work How she asks did the highlands come to be seen as needing development And why did the presence of well intentioned developers still leave behind so much apparent misery and hardship Returning to the region to conduct an ethnography of development professionals McKinnon found that the majority were dedicated to ideals of altruism emancipation and advocacy for local people and resigned to the inevitable failures and shortcomings that emerge when development efforts are co opted by geopolitics Her book is an account of the everyday efforts and struggles of those who do development consultants researchers government officials NGO workers and village partners Taking a critical approach to post development theory she argues that politics and ideology are an intrinsic part of development work and argues that an active engagement with the politics of development is essential for professionals hoping to make a difference Linguistics and Language Behavior Abstracts ,2006 Methods in

Development Research Jeremy Holland,John Campbell,2005 Over the past decade there has been an increasingly receptive audience for participatory and qualitative research methods by policy makers development practitioners and academics working in applied research At the same time there is an increasing awareness that the value of research can be enhanced through a more systematic combination of quantitative and qualitative methods While this recent interest has begun to provide useful pointers as to how development research might be improved it has also given rise to certain problems This book will draw together lessons about emerging best practice with regard to combining qualitative and quantitative methods and approaches to generate numbers from qualitative participatory methods and to monitor and evaluate development processes It will build and expand upon innovation and reflection from practice in developing and developed societies from within development agencies and academia government departments and civil society organizations By drawing on current research in many sectors and countries the book will situate current development research issues squarely within debates about development policy and social research and it will help begin the process of defining best practice in the use of participatory qualitative and quantitative methods and issues of methodological triangulation which are of considerable interest to academics practitioners and policy makers A genuine how to manual which combines best practice and new innovations and presents fascinating material for academics practitioners and policy makers Schooling, Fertility, and the Discourse of Development Frances Katherine Vavrus, 1998 Advances in Mixed-Method Evaluation: The Challenges and Benefits of Integrating Diverse Paradigms Jennifer C. Greene, Valerie J. Caracelli, 1997-06-16 Evaluation theory and practice today are characteristically pluralistic embracing diverse perspectives methods data and values within and across studies that aim to generate more insightful and meaningful evaluative claims This volume of New Directions for Evaluation seeks to strengthen the promise of pluralistic evaluation by advancing an enhanced conceptual framework for planning and implementing mixed method evaluation studies Previous mixed method work has concentrated on the technical level of method focusing on combining qualitative and quantitative methods within one evaluation study The present mixed method volume addresses the philosophical level of paradigm analyzing the challenges of combining in one study different even conflicting assumptions about the nature of social phenomena and our claims to know them The volume argues for a shift in the mixed method conversation The shift would be away from a preoccupation with explicit assumptive differences among paradigms such as objectivity subjectivity and realism relativism and toward other characteristics of social inquiry traditions Such characteristics define these traditions in important ways but are not logically irreconcilable The significant advance here is to redirect the bases for mixing methods away from what may well be incommensurable philosophical assumptions and toward other inquiry characteristics that can more productively share a common analytic space Through analysis of illustrative cases this volume presents an array of conceptual and practical ideas for promising mixed method inquiry directions This is the 74th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Evaluation For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page Housing Policy Debate , 2006 General Catalog -- University of California, Santa Cruz University of California, Santa Cruz, 2000
