Decentralization Mirage Comparing Decisionmaking Arrangements In Four High Schools

David T. Conley

Decentralization Mirage Comparing Decisionmaking Arrangements In Four High Schools:

The Decentralization Mirage Bruce Allen Bimber, 1994 This study analyzes decisionmaking at four high schools having varying degrees of decentralization and finds that decentralization efforts can fail to significantly change external constraints and decisionmaking authority      Comprehensive Reform for Urban High Schools Nettie E. Legters, 2002 This text offers the Talent Development Approach as an alternative to contemporary US educational reform efforts It details organizational curricular and instructional strategies to provide practitioners with a workable blueprint for whole school reform

Selected Papers in School Finance, 1998      Bold Plans for School Restructuring Samuel C. Stringfield, Steven M. Ross, Lana Smith, 2012-11-12 Two powerful forces are driving American s demands for better schools one longstanding force is idealistic and the other is new and economic The current group of young Americans is in danger of being the first full generation to consistently make less money and enjoy fewer worldly rewards than their parents The intersection of idealistic and pragmatic forces has produced an era of calls for reform in U S education that is unparalleled calls that have resulted in the creation of the New American Schools Development Corporation NASDC The chapters in this book highlight the path traveled by NASDC a private non profit corporation charged with creating new break the mold school designs for the 21st century and describes the first three years accomplishments of nine NASDC development teams      Resources in Education, 1995-05      RAND Research in Brief Rand Corporation, 1995      Effects of High School Restructuring Gordon Cawelti, 1997      ERS Bulletin Educational Research Service (Arlington, Va.), 1993      Roadmap to Restructuring David T. Conley, 1997      Authentic Achievement Fred M. Newmann, 1996-10-28 This new book presents the findings of a five year federally funded study that examined the connection between school restructuring and student achievement Investigating twenty four elementary and secondary schools from twenty two districts across the country the researchers found that restructuring efforts fail when there is too much focus on structure and technique and not enough attention paid to the intellectual quality of student and teacher work and to the vitality of the school community Using a wealth of examples the authors provide a vivid picture of the conditions under which innovations in a school s organization contribute to student achievement extending learning beyond rote memorization of isolated facts to thinking disciplined understanding and complex communication      Taking Stock of a School Reform Effort Margaret M. MacMullen, 1996      The Democratic Classroom Arthur Pearl, Tony Knight, 1999 This text argues that difficult problems can not be solved without a democratic process Essential to the resolution of such problems is a reconstructed school that prepares students to become effective problem solvers and informed responsible democratic citizens      The American School Superintendent Gene R. Carter, William G. Cunningham, 1997-02-12 The American School SuperintAndent is well written It includes the case studies and voices of those who know the job best It provides a powerful treatise on the challenge of the job But best of all it gives one a sense of hope Yes those who stop reading partway through will wonder why anyone would want this job But those who stay with the authors to the And will see that there are solutions to the problems and answers to the questions Savvy leaders who can master the skills and attitudes necessary to navigate the perilous role of the superintendency will be rewarded by success in fulfilling the most difficult and potentially one of the most rewarding jobs in American public life today From the foreword by Paul D Houston This in depth look at the ever mounting pressures on the American school superintendent draws on interviews from across the country The authors propose changes in the way the role of superintendent is conceived and map out promising strategies for easing the burdens of the job They also offer invaluable guidance from practitioners on working with boards defusing crises building community coalitions and fostering school improvement and technological innovation to meet the needs of the future

Improving Governance Laurence E. Lynn (jr.), Carolyn J. Heinrich, Carolyn J. Hill, 2001 Policymakers and public managers around the world have become preoccupied with the question of how their goals can be achieved in a way that rebuilds public confidence in government Yet because public policies and programs increasingly are being administered through a complicated web of jurisdictions agencies and public private partnerships evaluating their effectiveness is more difficult than in the past Though social scientists possess insightful theories and powerful methods for conducting empirical research on governance and public management their work is too often fragmented and irrelevant to the specific tasks faced by legislators administrators and managers Proposing a framework for research based on the premise that any particular governance arrangement is embedded in a wider social fiscal and political context Laurence E Lynn Jr Carolyn J Heinrich and Carolyn J Hill argue that theory based empirical research when well conceived and executed can be a primary source of fundamental durable knowledge about governance and policy management Focusing on complex human services such as public assistance child protection and public education they construct an integrative multilevel logic of governance that can help researchers increase the sophistication power and relevance of their work
