Decentralization And Coordination Of Water Resource Management:

Decentralization and Coordination of Water Resource Management Douglas D. Parker, Yacov Tsur, 2011-07-08 Centralized top down management of water resources through regulations has created unnecessary economic burdens upon users. More flexible decentralized controls through the use of economic incentives have gained acceptance over the past decade. The theme of this book is the increasing efforts throughout water scarce regions to rely upon economic incentives and decentralized mechanisms for efficient water management and allocation. The book begins with a section of introductory chapters describing water systems institutions, constraints, and similarities in the following regions: Israel and the Middle East, Turkey, California, Florida, and Australia. Four of these regions face similar climates with wet winters and dry summers. Florida has a more even seasonal distribution of rainfall yet it uses similar management strategies in controlling groundwater demand and water quality. The book concludes with a section on water management case studies. These case studies examine issues of conflict related to both water quality and water quantity. While the case studies address both international and intranational concerns in specific regions of the world, they portray broad principles that are applicable to many regions.

Integrated Water Resources Management in Latin America Asit Biswas, Benedito P.F. Braga, Cecilia Tortajada, Marco Palermo, 2013-09-13 It is now widely accepted that the world is likely to face a major water crisis unless the present management practices are improved very significantly. Promoted extensively by donors and international institutions over the past 15 years, integrated water resources management (IWRM) has been assumed explicitly to be the solution for managing the limited water resources of the world. Hundreds of millions of dollars have now been spent in promoting IWRM in developing countries. However, no serious and objective analysis has ever been undertaken as to whether IWRM has made water management more efficient and equitable in any region of the world than otherwise may have been the case. This pioneering analysis indicates that IWRM has not only been unsuccessful in Latin America but also is highly unlikely to succeed in the future. The reasons and constraints for this failure are outlined. This book previously appeared as a special issue of the International Journal of Water Resources Development.

Research and Coordination Needs for Water Resources Management in Indonesia, 1994 The Institutional Economics of Water R. Maria Saleth, Ariel Dinar, 2004-01-01 This publication examines issues of water sector reform and performance from the perspectives of institutional economics and political economic studies. The authors develop an alternative quantitative assessment methodology based on the principle of institutional ecology as well as data collected from 127 water experts from 43 countries and regions around the world using a cross country review of recent water sector reforms within an institutional transaction cost framework. Water Governance Decentralization in Sub-Saharan Africa Joao Mutondo, Stefano Farolfi, Ariel Dinar, 2016-02-12 This book is about the process of water management decentralization in African countries which is seen as a means of advancing river basin management at the lowest appropriate level. There are very different stages of implementing decentralization in practice This called for research aiming to understand the following questions i why do some water agencies succeed more than others ii What are the variables involved in such reform process iii which variables have a positive or a negative impact on the implementation of decentralization processes iv Which variables could be affected by policy interventions and how This study aimed to answer these questions through the following objectives i analyze the factors that have potentially affected the results of decentralization process in SSA basins and ii analyze the performance of decentralization process in SSA basins Qualitative and quantitative approaches were used The main findings are that water scarcity is a major stimulus to reform water user associations if not well prepared and trained may deter the decentralization process and being part of an existing treaty over an international basin helps foster the process Conditions improving decentralization performance include scarcity of water resources longer period of implementation bottom up creation and appropriate budgetary support

Sustainability of Integrated Water Resources Management Shimelis Gebriye Setegn, Maria Concepcion Donoso, 2015-09-04 The main focus of this book is sustainable management of water resources in a changing climate The book also addresses the question of how to define and measure the sustainability of Integrated Water Resources Management IWRM The sustainability of IWRM is an important issue when planning and or developing policies that consider the impact of climate change water governance and ecohydrology in the context of a more holistic approach to ensure sustainable management of water resources Sustainable IWRM is more about processes and relatively little systematic or rigorous work has been done to articulate what components are the most essential to ensure the ongoing sustainability of IWRM efforts The chapters cover topics including global prospective of IWRM allocation of environmental flows in IWRM ecohydrology water resources and environmental sustainability climate change and IWRM IWRM and water governance including social economic public health and cultural aspects climate change resiliency actions related to water resources management sustainability and tools in support of sustainability for IWRM This book will be of interest to researchers practitioners water resources managers policy and decision makers donors international institutions governmental and non governmental organizations educators as well as graduate and undergraduate students It is a useful reference for Integrated Water Resources Management IWRM ecohydrology climate change impact and adaptations water governance environmental flows geographic information system and modeling tools water and energy nexus and related topics

Modelling Change in Integrated Economic and Environmental Systems S. Mahendrarajah, A. J. Jakeman, M. J. McAleer, Michael McAleer, 1999-11-05 This accessible volume fills a much needed gap and addresses core issues on how economic and environmental systems are interconnected looking at how economic frameworks and features of environmental systems can be integrated within formal models to address changes and associated resource management issues at appropriate levels micro level and national or global level The more the relationship between economic and environmental systems is studied analytically and empirically the more aware we become of the gap in our existing knowledge of environmental data and process parameters While important empirical questions are unanswered in environmental economics literature work on the environmental science of ecological systems fails to raise the right questions and identify key variables in human exploited ecosystems This book covers Concepts and Methods Land Water and Production Biodiversity Preservation and Production Pollution Externalities The Environment and Global Economy This timely book will be of interest to environmental scientists economists and policy makers students academics and researchers interested in ecosystems modelling ecological economics and environmental resource economics The Cumulative Book Index ,1998 A world list of books in the English language Pricing Irrigation Water Robert C.
