Systems and Decision Making Hans G. Daellenbach,1994-10-11 Systems and Decision Making A Management Science Approach Hans G Daellenbach University of Canterbury Christchurch New Zealand Traditional methods of problem solving based on the cause and effect model can no longer cope with the complex situations in which decisions have to be made today These problem situations occur within a systems context Most of these systems are created and controlled by humans and it is therefore important that decision making is guided by a systematic and comprehensive methodology that helps the decision maker to make effective use of his her extensive but limited powers of reasoning Systems and Decision Making combines contemporary systems work with Operations Research OR Daellenbach places an emphasis on developing a methodology for decision situations that lend themselves to quantitative approaches rather than give an elementary survey of many OR MS techniques It incorporates some of the learnings of soft systems methodology for more practical problem solving particularly at the problem identification and formulation stages The text also shows that the scientific component of modelling can be considerably enhanced by the use of various diagrammatic devices The second part of the book studies a number of topics important for the analyst such as how to deal with the time element with constraints with uncertainty and with multiple goals These are demonstrated by various OR MS techniques Systems and Decision Making is an excellent core text for undergraduate and graduate students of systems management science and MBA courses

Decision Making Process Denis Bouyssou,Didier Dubois,Henri Prade,Marc Pirlot,2013-05-10 This book provides an overview of the main methods and results in the formal study of the human decision making process as defined in a relatively wide sense A key aim of the approach contained here is to try to break down barriers between various disciplines encompassed by this field including psychology economics and computer science All these approaches have contributed to progress in this very important and much studied topic in the past but none have proved sufficient so far to define a complete understanding of the highly complex processes and outcomes This book provides the reader with state of the art coverage of the field essentially forming a roadmap to the field of decision analysis The first part of the book is devoted to basic concepts and techniques for representing and solving decision problems ranging from operational research to artificial intelligence Later chapters provide an extensive overview of the decision making process under conditions of risk and uncertainty Finally there are chapters covering various approaches to multi criteria decision making Each chapter is written by experts in the topic concerned and contains an extensive bibliography for further reading and reference

Multicriteria Methodology for Decision Aiding Bernard Roy, 1996-08-31 axiomatic results should be at the heart of such a science Through them we should be able to enlighten and scientifically assist decision making processes especially by making that which is objective stand out more clearly from that which is less objective separating robust from fragile conclusions dissipating certain forms of misunderstanding in communication avoiding the pitfall of illusory reasoning emphasizing once they are understood incontrovertible results The difficulties I encountered at the beginning of my career as an operations researcher and later as a consultant made me realize that there were some limitations on objectivity in decision aiding In my opinion five major aspects must be taken into consideration 1 The borderline or frontier between what is and what is not feasible is often fuzzy Moreover this borderline is frequently modified in light of what is found from the study itself 2 In many real world problems the decision maker D does not really exist as a person truly able to make a decision Usually several people actors or stakeholders take part in the decision process and it is important not to confuse the one who ratifies a decision with the so called decision maker in the decision aiding process This decision maker is in fact the person or the set of persons for whom or in the name of whom decision aiding effort is provided

Multiobjective Decision Making Vira Chankong, Yacov Y Haimes, 2008-02-04 This first rate text explores the theory and methodology of systems engineering in evaluating alternative courses of action and associated decision making policies It treats criteria as multidimensional rather than scalar in the development of normative theories These contribute to a behavioral theory of decision making and provide guidance for exercising judgment An introductory discussion of the systemic approach to judgment and decision is followed by explorations of psychological value measurements utility classical decision analysis and vector optimization theory The second section chiefly deals with methods of assessing and evaluating alternatives including both noninteractive and interactive methods A taxonomy and a comparative evaluation of methods conclude the text
