Declarations Of War:

Declaring War Brien Hallett,2012-08-13 Offers an historical legal constitutional moral and philosophical analysis of the declarations of 1812 1898 and the War Powers Resolution of 1973 Declarations of War David M. Ackerman,2002 The Lost Art of Declaring War Brien Hallett,2024-03-18 Historically it has been assumed that war is violence and declarations of war are simply public announcements that serve to initiate combat Brien Hallett denies both assumptions and claims that war is policy not violence The Lost Art of Declaring War analyzes the crucial differences between combat and war and convincingly argues that the power to declare war is in actuality the power to compose a text draft a document write a denunciation Once written the declaration then serves three functions to articulate the political purposes of the war to guide and direct military operations and to establish the boundary between justified combat and unjustified devastation Hallett sounds a clarion call urging the people and their representatives to take up the challenge and write fully reasoned declarations of war Then and only then can a civilized nation like the United States lay claim to being fully democratic not only in peacetime but in wartime as well Hostilities Without Declaration of War John Frederick Maurice,Great Britain. War Office. Intelligence Division,1883 Declarations of War and Authorizations for the Use of Military Force Jennifer Elsea,Matthew C. Weed,2014-07-15 From the Washington Administration to the present Congress and the President have enacted 11 separate formal declarations of war against foreign nations in five different wars Each declaration has been preceded by a presidential request either in writing or in person before a joint session of Congress The reasons cited in justification for the requests have included armed attacks on United States territory or its citizens and threats to United States rights or interests as a sovereign nation Declarations of War (DOW) and Authorizations for the Use of Military Force Jennifer Elsea,2011-06 From the Washington Admin to the present Congress and the Pres have enacted 11 separate formal DoW against foreign nations in five different wars This report provides historical background on the enactment of DoW and authorizations for the use of force and analyzes their legal effects under internat and U S domestic law It also sets forth their texts in two appendices The report includes an extensive listing and summary of statutes that are triggered by a DoW a declaration of national emergency and or the existence of a state of war Also includes a summary of the congressional procedures applicable to the enactment of a DoW or authorization for the use of force and to measures under the War Powers Resolution This is a print on demand report Declarations of War and Authorizations for the Use of Military Force Jennifer Elsea,Richard F. Grimmett,Library of Congress. Congressional Research Service,2007 This report provides historical background on the enactment of declarations of war and authorizations for the use of force and analyzes their legal effects under international and domestic law It also sets forth their texts in two appendices Because the statutes that confer standby authority on the President and the executive branch potentially play such a large role in an armed conflict to which the United States is a party the report includes an extensive listing and summary of the statutes that are triggered by a declaration of war a declaration of national emergency and or the existence of a state of war The report concludes with a summary of the congressional procedures applicable to the enactment of a declaration of war or authorization for the use of force and to measures under War Powers Resolution The Law of War Between Belligerents Percy Bordwell,1908

Declarations of War and Authorizations for Military Forces Jennifer Elsea,Richard F. Grimmett,2009 This book provides historical background on the enactment of declarations of war and authorisations for the use of force and analyses their legal effects under international and domestic law It also sets forth their texts in two appendices Because the statutes that confer standby authority on the President and the executive branch potentially play such a large role in an armed conflict to which the United States is a party the book includes an extensive listing and summary of the statutes that are triggered by a declaration of war a declaration of national emergency and or the existence of a state of war The book concludes with a summary of the congressional procedures applicable to the enactment of a declaration of war or authorisation for the use of force and to measures under the War Powers Resolution Declarations of War and Authorizations for the Use of Military Force ,2007 From the Washington Administration to the present Congress and the President have enacted 11 separate formal declarations of war against foreign nations in five different wars Each declaration has been preceded by a presidential request either in writing or in person before a joint session of Congress The reasons cited in justification for the requests have included armed attacks on United States territory or its citizens and threats to United States rights or interests as a sovereign nation Congress and the President have also on a number of occasions enacted authorizations for the use of force instead of declarations of war Most commonly such measures have authorized the use of force against either a named country or unnamed hostile nations in a given region In most cases the President has requested the authority but Congress has sometimes given the President less than what he asked for In contrast to the declarations of war not all authorizations for the use of force have resulted in actual combat Both declarations and authorizations require the signature of the President in order to become law In contrast to an authorization a declaration of war in itself creates a state of war under international law and legitimates the killing of enemy combatants the seizure of its property and the apprehension of enemy aliens At one time a declaration was deemed a necessary legal prerequisite to a war and was also thought to terminate diplomatic and commercial relations and most treaties between the combatants In the modern era the international legal consequences of declarations have become less determinate in fact declarations have rarely been issued since World War II Perhaps most important neither a declaration nor an authorization is necessary to trigger application of the laws of war such as the Hague and Geneva Conventions for that the fact of armed conflict is the controlling circumstance With respect to domestic law a declaration of war automatically triggers many standby statutory authorities conferring special powers on the President with respect to the military foreign trade transportation communications manufacturing alien enemies etc In contrast no standby authorities appear to be triggered automatically by an authorization for the use of force Most standby authorities do not require a declaration of war to be actualized but can be triggered by a declaration of national emergency or simply by the existence of a state of war. Declarations of war and authorizations for the use of force waive the time limitations otherwise applicable to the use of force imposed by the War Powers Resolution. This report provides historical background on the enactment of declarations of war and authorizations for the use of force and analyzes their legal effects under international and domestic law. It also sets forth their texts in two appendices. Because the statutes that confer standby authority on the President and the executive branch potentially play such a large role in an armed conflict to which the United States is a party, the report includes an extensive listing and summary of the statutes that are triggered by a declaration of war, a declaration of national emergency, and/or the existence of a state of war. The report concludes with a summary of the congressional procedures applicable to the enactment of a declaration of war or authorization for the use of force and to measures under the War Powers Resolution. The report will be updated as circumstances warrant.
