

IN CONGRESS. JULY 4, 1776.

United States of America
Unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such form, as shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, in such a case, would dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that even the most arduous struggle for Liberty may be necessary to bring men to the full sense of their rights.

But a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same arbitrary system of Government, has given place to the present Dictation of the People, for the purpose of throwing off such a Government, and of establishing new Principles of Liberty.

That the United Colonies by these Declarations, do hereby sever all connection with Great Britain; that they are united together as free and independent States, absolving themselves from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all future intercourses with Great Britain shall be on equal terms of Commerce with the United States of America.

That the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America is hereby acknowledged.

Declaring Independence:

Declaring Independence Pauline Maier, Robert G. Parkinson, Robert M. S. McDonald, David Armitage, Sandra Day O'Connor, 2008 This volume asks us to reread and rethink our founding document The Declaration of Independence as we now understand it the stirring passages that define our democratic creed is not the Declaration that Thomas Jefferson and his congressional colleagues drafted nor the document that inspired or provoked contemporaneous readers and listeners at home and abroad Essays by four of the Declaration's leading students make the historic text come alive enabling us to hear what it had to say in its own time and what it might have to say to us today Copiously illustrated with selections from the Albert H Small Declaration of Independence Collection at the University of Virginia and complemented by biographical sketches of the Declaration signers this volume offers a rich resource for discovering the origin and influence of America's founding document BOOK JACKET

The Declaration of Independence Michael Burgan, 2000-09 Examines the political situation in America at the time of the troubles between England and her colonies there and describes how the Declaration of Independence was written and accepted

Declaring Independence Jay Fliegelman, 1993 Preoccupied with the spectacle of sincerity the quest for a natural language led paradoxically to a greater theatricalization of public speaking as well as to a new social dramaturgy and a deeply self-conscious performative understanding of selfhood Concerned with recovering what was assumed but not spoken in the realm of eighteenth century speech and action the book treats Jefferson whose fascination with Homer Ossian Patrick Henry and music theory all relate to the new oratorical ideal as a conflicted participant in the new rhetoric and a witness to its social costs and benefits

Declaring Independence Edward J. Larson, 2025-11-11 On the 250th anniversary of American independence with the history of our founding a political battleground this study of the ideas and battlefield sacrifices of 1776 by a Pulitzer Prize winning scholar could not be more timely At the beginning of 1776 virtually no one in the colonies was advocating independence Americans based their grievances against Parliament on their rights as British subjects By the end of 1776 independence was on every patriot's lips The many tyrannies of a king had made an independent republic necessary In Declaring Independence Edward J Larson gives us a compact insightful history of that pivotal year He traces a narrative arc that runs from the inspiring appeals of Paine's Common Sense in January through the soaring ideals of midsummer when the Continental Congress grounded independence in the self-evident truths of human equality and individual rights and the states wove revolutionary principles of republican government and the rule of law into their new constitutions to Paine's urgent pleas of December when the times that try men's souls required Americans not to shrink from the service of their country Dramatic military clashes also punctuate the year the British evacuation of Boston forced by the brilliant maneuvers of Washington's Army the Battle of Long Island a costly defeat that opened New York to British occupation and the desperate year-end victory of a threadbare American army at Trenton Combined these ideals and the sacrifices remind us why on this anniversary and at this political moment 1776
