Decolonizing Feminisms Race Gender And Empire Building:

Decolonizing Feminisms Laura E. Donaldson, 2017-10-06 Donaldson presents new paradigms of interpretation that help to bring the often oppositional stances of First versus Third World and traditional versus postmodern feminism into a more constructive relationship She situates contemporary theoretical debates about reading writing and the politics of identity within the context of historical colonialism primarily under the English in the nineteenth century Decolonizing Feminisms Laura E. Donaldson, 1993 A recent challenge to feminism from the Black or Third World women's movement accuses the work of White middle class feminists of being complicit with the agendas of White supremacy and Anglo Saxon imperialism Donaldson's analysis aims to contribute to a more supportive relationship Race, Gender, and Punishment Mary Bosworth, Jeanne Flavin, 2007 In this book Mary Bosworth and Jeanne Flavin bring together twelve original essays by prominent scholars to examine not only the discrimination that is evident but also the structural and cultural forces that have influenced and continue to perpetuate the current situation Contributors point to four major factors that have impacted public sentiment and criminal justice policy colonialism slavery immigration and globalization In doing so they reveal how practices of punishment not only need particular ideas about race to exist but they also legitimate them The Rise and Fall of Modern Empires, Volume IV Martin Shipway, 2016-12-05 The collection of essays in this volume offers an overview of scholarly approaches to the ways in which diverse actors representing the colonised or the colonising nations or indeed the international community reacted to colonialism during the lifetime of the modern colonial empires or in their aftermath The coverage is broad in terms of geographical scope and historical period with articles on the major colonial empires in Asia and Africa and the imperial centres of Paris London and Berlin from the conquests of the late nineteenth century to the period of decolonisation The selection also reflects recent academic trends by focusing on countries whose colonial past and experience of decolonisation have been studied and debated with particular intensity such as Algeria Kenya and India The volume draws on previously published articles and book chapters by leading international scholars writing in or translated into English and includes a critical introduction which situates each essay in relation to recent debates in this dynamic and expanding field of study Anarchafeminism Chiara Bottici, 2021-11-18 How can we be sure the oppressed do not become oppressors in their turn How can we create a feminism that doesn't turn into yet another tool for oppression It has become commonplace to argue that in order to fight the subjugation of women we have to unpack the ways different forms of oppression intersect with one another class race gender sexuality disability and ecology to name only a few By arguing that there is no single factor or arche explaining the oppression of women Chiara Bottici proposes a radical anarchafeminist philosophy inspired by two major claims that there is something specific to the oppression of women and that in order to fight that we need to untangle all other forms of oppression and the anthropocentrism they inhabit Anarchism needs feminism to address the continued subordination of all femina but feminism needs anarchism if it does not want to become the privilege of a few Anarchafeminism calls for a decolonial and deimperial position and for a renewed awareness of the somatic communism connecting all different life forms on the planet In this new revolutionary vision feminism does not mean the liberation of the lucky few but liberation for all living creatures from both capitalist exploitation and an androcentric politics of domination Either all or none of us will be free

Race and Gender in Modern Western Warfare David Ulbrich, Bobby A. Wintermute, 2018-12-03 This book fills a gap in the historiographical and theoretical fields of race gender and war In brief Race and Gender in Modern Western Warfare RGMWW offers an introduction into how cultural constructions of identity are transformed by war and how they in turn influence the nature of military institutions and conflicts Focusing on the modern West this project begins by introducing the contours of race and gender theories as they have evolved and how they are employed by historians anthropologists sociologists and other scholars The project then mixes chronological narrative with analysis and historiography as it takes the reader through a series of case studies ranging from the early nineteenth century to the Global War of Terror The purpose throughout is not merely to create a list of so called great moments in race and gender but to create a meta landscape in which readers can learn to identify for themselves the disjunctures flaws and critical synergies in the traditional memory and history of a largely monochrome and male exclusive military experience The final chapter considers the current challenges that Western societies particularly the United States face in imposing social diversity and tolerance on statist military structures in a climates of sometimes vitriolic public debate RGMWW represents our effort to blend race gender and military war to problematize these intersections and then provide some answers to those problems

Romanticism, Race, and Imperial Culture, 1780-1834 Alan Richardson, Sonia Hofkosh, 1996 Features 13 essays re examining a selection of romantic era writers texts and genres to explore the relation between romanticism as a literary field and the emergence of the second British empire during the formative period of 1780 1834

Discourse, 1994 Race, Gender & Class, 1995 Gender and Colonialism Geraldine Moane, 1999-02-26 Develops a liberation psychology which would aid in transforming the damaging psychological patterns associated with oppression

Women Studies Abstracts, 2003 Mariama Bâ, Rigoberta Menchú, and Postcolonial Feminism Laura Charlotte Kempen, 2001 This book investigates the convergence of feminist literary projects in the Latin American and West African contexts and demonstrates how the authors examined here employ similar writing strategies to re constitute feminine subjects Their writing strives to rid literature and thus international psyches of reductive stereotypes of subaltern women while projecting more complex active female images In portraying the horrific victimization that they and their people have experienced these writers claim a position of authorial power and wield their tragedies along with their words as a weapon against imperial patriarchal and neocolonial tyranny Despite their vast socioeconomic and cultural differences these women share much common ground where they cultivate feminine words of deliverance

East Africa connects popular notions of American feminism American national identity and the reorientation of Euro American imperialism at the turn of the century Letters to Henrietta Isabella Lucy Bird, 2003 The legendary Victorian traveler s previously unpublished letters to her homebound sister Gender in the Contact Zone Jocelyn Fenton Stitt, 2002 Producing Women and Progress in Zimbabwe Christine Sylvester, 2000 This book presents empirical and interpretive approaches to the question of who women workers of postcolonial Zimbabwe are and what they wish to gain in the way of progress Christine Sylvester moves between theory and on the ground narration with such grace Fans of her feminist theorizing will find that her thinking about Zimbabwean women s lives will make them all the smarter Cynthia Enloe Author of Maneuvers This book provides vital exploration to the study of gender and labour relations in Zimbabwe The author breaks new ground by incorporating theoretical perspectives with African women s everyday life and everyday experiences This is an important book timely in the sense that it departs from treating women merely as objects but as subjects with voices to articulate their own history Seki Nzenza Shand Academic Development Specialist This book presents empirical and interpretive approaches to the question of who women workers of postcolonial Zimbabwe are and what they wish to gain in the way of progress Through interviews with over 300 women across four economic sectors of the late 1980s economy and with over 150 experts working with women the study finds that women workers are neither easy to characterize or set on a course of progress for themselves points that supervisors and development experts do not seem to realize and accommodate The study draws on a wide range of theoretical orientations and evokes images of women and progress from the prodigious imaginative literature that has marked Zimbabwe s postcolonial years Women's Studies on Its Own Robyn Wiegman, 2002-11-13 The future of a retheorized women s studies in an increasingly institutionalized context Olive Schreiner Cherry Clayton, 1997 Schreiner s life is central to her texts In this study Cherry Clayton explores Schreiner s fiction and nonfiction as complementary aspects of the same developing mind and art Without reducing Schreiner s literature to the purely autobiographical Clayton suggests that Schreiner s fictional accounts of spiritual and social unconventionality are profoundly tied to the author s experiences as a young woman Ethics and Aesthetics Gerhard Hoffmann (Dr. phil.), Alfred Hornung, 1996 Listen to the Women! Aruna Gnanadason, 2005 Listen to the Women Listen to the Earth appeals for a holistic Christian approach to the stewardship of creation The book seeks common ground between the commitment to social justice within third world liberation theologies and the environmental consciousness characteristic of eco feminist theologies Author Aruna Gnanadason begins her study with concrete examples of the struggles of Indigenous peoples especially women to preserve traditions of prudent care for the earth in opposition to the modern ideal of development prized by multinational corporations neo liberal financial institutions and many national governments The author cites examples of eco systems peoples who challenge the economic doctrines that nature is an object to be exploited and natural resources are commodities to be bartered and proceeds to argue for a global ethic of care for the earth an ethic of resistance that shows appreciation for both social and ecological concerns related to the integrity of God's creation
