Core Vs Periphery Migration To And Within Israel 1948 1995:

Country on the Move: Migration to and within Israel, 1948-1995 Gabriel Lipshitz, 2013-03-14 Country on the Move presents original research and a comprehensive multidisciplinary analysis of the spatial aspects of migration. It considers the spatial results of two diametrically opposed policies: planning from above to settle the North African and Asian newcomers in the 1950s and planning by market forces for immigrants from the former Soviet Union in the 1990s. Unlike other books on immigration, Country on the Move also analyzes internal migration within Israel, which is an outcome of the regional disparities produced by immigration. Moreover, it compares the empirical findings in Israel with international trends, and its analysis can serve as a foundation for setting spatial immigration policy. Audience: Researchers specializing in population geography, migration and regional development; university students on all levels who are taking courses in these subjects; and top officials in government ministries that deal with immigration. Israel Yearbook and Almanac, 1998 Human

Activities and the Tropical Rainforest Bernard K. Maloney, 2013-11-11 Arising initially from a conference, the papers published here have been integrated into book form to provide information on human activities and the tropical rainforest in the past and present and on the possible future of the rainforest in a unique way. Other books have considered some but not all of these themes; however, none has stressed the continuity of change over time and its possible outcome for the people of the forest as well as for the forest itself. Because of the approach taken, this book should appeal across traditional disciplinary boundaries. Indeed, a prime aim has been to suggest that rainforest, because of its complexity and the complexity of people-rainforest relationships throughout time, deserves study from a broad perspective. This book poses more questions than answers about the rainforest, and it is hoped that it will encourage readers to think about the rainforest in a wider way than hitherto. This book is aimed at geographers, physical and human social anthropologists, archaeologists, pedologists, foresters and tropical botanists, and will be of value to graduates of various disciplines setting out to research the rainforest. The Arid Frontier Hendrik J. Bruins, Harvey Lithwick, 2012-12-06 The arid frontier has been a challenge for humanity from time immemorial. Drylands cover more than one third of the global land surface distributed over Africa, Asia, Australia, America and Southern Europe. Disasters may develop as a result of complex interactions between drought, desertification and society. Therefore, proactive planning and interactive management, including disaster coping strategies, are essential in dealing with arid frontier development. This book presents a conceptual framework with case studies in dryland development and management. The option of a rational and ethical discourse for development that is beneficial for both the environment and society is emphasized, avoiding extreme environmentalism and human destructionism, combating both desertification and human livelihood insecurity. Such development has to be based on appropriate ethics, legislation, policy, proactive planning and interactive management. Excellent scholars address these issues, focusing on the principal interactions between people and dryland environments in terms of drought, food, land, water, renewable energy and housing. Audience: This volume will be of great value to all those interested in Dryland Development and Management professionals and policy makers in governmental international and non governmental organizations NGOs as well as researchers lecturers and students in Geography Environmental Management Regional Studies Development Anthropology Hazard and Disaster Management Agriculture and Pastoralism Land and Water Use African Studies and Renewable Energy Resources International Books in Print ,1986 Urban Clustering Boris Adol'fovich Portnov,Evyatar Erell,2001 The effects of spatial location on socio economic development is a critical issue in urban and regional planning This comprehensive work examines the success or failure of an urban place in relation to the spatial characteristics of the urban cluster to which it belongs Employing case studies from a variety of countries it analyzes relationships between the clustering of towns and their attractiveness to migrants and investors In addition it provides a fundamental overview and critical analysis of basic concepts in the field of urban and regional location introducing new methods for assessing the sustainability of urban growth in central and peripheral regions The book also proposes planning strategies designed to enhance the potential of urban growth
