

Soon after their first meeting in 1906, Freud's future biographer, Ernest Jones, initiated a correspondence with the founder of psychoanalysis that would continue until Freud's death in London in 1939. Jones, a Welsh born neurologist, would become a principal player in the development of psychoanalysis in England and the United States. This volume makes available from British and American archives nearly seven hundred previously unpublished letters, postcards, and telegrams, the vast majority of the three-decade correspondence between Freud and his admiring younger colleague.

These letters and notes, shared off almost compulsively in the odd moments of busy professional lives in Barcelona, Vienna, and London, in transit between meetings or on holidays on the Continent, provide a lively account of the early years of the psychoanalytic movement and its fortunes during the turbulent interwar period. The reader is invited to share in the domestic and international news of the day, to make the acquaintance of the prominent personalities among the first generation of Freud's followers, and to witness the drama of complex rivalries and conflicting loyalties—including the personal and intellectual rupture between Freud and Jung, and Jones's unremitting effort to maneuver politically between Freud and Jung, and Jones's unremitting effort to maneuver politically between Freud and Jung. Present in the correspondence also are the women who in differing ways touched the lives of both men and influenced their work—Loe Kana, Joan Riviere, Melanie Klein, and Anna Freud.
